ISSUES REACH NEW HIGHS FOR CURRENT YEAR

Shares Exchange in Blocks of 1,000 to 8,000 in Splurge at Opening Hours.

RAILS, MOTORS LEAD WAY

Trading Continues at Brisk Pace Despite Outcropping of Profit Taking.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — United States Steel common stock today reached a new high level for 1938 at $62.25 a share, a rise of $1.75 from yesterday's close, and a rise of $24.25 a share from the year's low.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks spurted to new high prices for the year today in a deluge of buying orders which clogged the exchange and caused tickers to lag six minutes.

Rail, automobile and steel stocks rose 50 cents to $1 37½ as blocks ranging from 1,000 to 8,000 shares changes hands in the early turnover.

Bonds and commodities joined the advance while the ticker gradually caught up with the pace of trading.

Gold at New High.

In London the day was featured by a European gold rush which sent the price of the metal to a new high since April 1937, with more than $8,000,000 gold changing hands. The pound sterling fell to $4.92, the lowest level since last April 21.

Here, the pound broke to its lowest price since June 3, 1937, selling at the bottom for $4.91⅞, off ⅜ of a cent from yesterday's close.

So heavy was early trading on the stock exchange that the first transaction in U. S. Steel—5,000 shares at $61.50, up $1—did not appear until 11 minutes after the opening gong.

New York Central's initial block of 8,000 shares sold at $19.62½ a share, up 50 cents, and other railroad issues were active.

Chrysler opened 3,000 five minutes after the U. S. Steel transactions at $70,87½, up $1.37½.

Aviation Issues Up.

New highs were recorded in mail order shares on large turnover. Metals were strong and active. Demand was great for aviation and rubber issues.

Profit-taking developed, causing prices to level off somewhat before noon, but trading continued at a brisk pace.

Preserve Heart In Urn, Queen Marie Asks In Her Will

BUCHAREST —(AP)— Dowager Queen Marie, in letters opened today, requested that dark lilac be the color of mourning for her and that her heart be embalmed and preserved in a silver urn at her favorite resort on the Black Sea.

The death of their mother brought at least temporary reconciliation between Queen Marie's two sons, King Carol and Nichalas Brana.

The king summoned his brother —the former Prince Nicholas, shorn of his titles and in exile in Italy since April 26, 1937, for marrying a commoner—to attend the funeral of the queen, who died Monday of an unusual form of cirrhosis of the liver at the age of 62.

King Carol warned Brana, however, that he must leave Rumania immediately after the ceremonies.

A royal train is to convey the body Thursday to Bucharest where it will lie in state Thursday and Friday in Cotroceni palace.

Roosevelt Lands 38-Pounder But Friend Beats Him.

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, ENROUTE TO PANAMA—(AP)—President Roosevelt's vacation cruise, already favored by fair weather and good fishing, led him farther down the Mexican coast today.

The chief executive landed a 38-pound yellowtail yesterday in Magdalena bay but came off second best in size of catch to Col. E. M. Watson, who caught a 60-pound grouper.

Guilty Plea Halts Trial in Numbers Case

Charge Against One Man Dropped After Other's Fined $100, Costs.

Scheduled jury trials of two Mansfielders, charged with operating a "numbers game" came to an abrupt close in municipal court this morning when one of the pair changed his plea to guilty, and City Solicitor Marion D. Ward moved for dismissal of charges against the second.

John Dadlis, 170 North Diamond street, charged with selling tickets in a scheme of chance was fined $100 and costs.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward immediately asked for dismissal of the case against Nick Poulos, 144 North Main street, charged with promoting a scheme of chance.

Says Evidence Lacking.

While no statement was made either by the prosecution or defence in court, Ward said he had moved for dismissal on the grounds that the state did not have evidence to convict Poulos. He said that police had no evidence except that three other men had been arrested on a lottery charge in the building which Poulos is said to own. The trio pleaded guilty two weeks ago to selling tickets on a scheme of chance and were fined a total of $200.

Officers held as evidence in the case several partly used policy books, the kind used in playing the "numbers," which were found in a North Main street pool room which police said was operated by Dadlis.

The cases of Poulos and Dadlis were to have been tried before a jury on a motion filed by their counsel, Atty. George Biddle, last week. The venire had been drawn and served and the case was to have opened today.

Three members of the panel and one witness appeared in court today and were paid from the costs of $25.70 which were assessed Dadlis, Clerk of Courts Allen K. Ports said.

Ports said that Biddle, who had requested the jury trial, filed a waiver for dismissal of the jury before court opened and said that Dadlis would enter a plea of guilty. The clerk said he then called 17 of the talismen at their homes, telling them not to report. He was unable to reach the other three who reported.

Both Poulos and Dadlis pleaded innocent when arraigned in municipal court July 5, three days after their arrest.

MORE SPENDING?

Capital Hears Congress to Get New WPA Demands.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The 76th congress, when it convenes in January, will definitely face a request from the WPA for another billion dollars to complete its fiscal year, and the possibility of a request from PWA for authorization and additional millions to expand its public works program.

The size of the WPA appropriation to be requested and the possibility of the PWA request, however, will depend on the business trends of the next five months.

Indications that these bureaus would request additional funds came to light shortly after the plea of Chairman Jesse Jones of the RFC to banks, urging them to stop "standing on the sidelines" and get into the installment credit business or face further government competition.

Radiophoto of Corrigan, Safe in Dublin

—Central Press Radiophoto.

Here is that amazing aerial daredevil, Douglas G. Corrigan, 31-year-old California airplane mechanic, who flew the Atlantic from New York to Dublin, Ireland, by "mistake," talking to a Baldonnel airport official in Dublin. Corrigan, who insisted he had Los Angeles as an intended destination, made the flight of 3,150 miles in a $900, antiquated plane in 28 hours and 13 minutes.

YOUNG DRIVER SENT TO O. S. R.

Boy, 19, Weeps as He Hears Sentence of 1 to 20 Years for Fatal Traffic Crash.

A 19-year-old Mansfield youth was sentenced to one to 20 years in the Mansfield reformatory this morning when he pleaded guilty in common pleas court to an indictment for second degree manslaughter as a result of the death of Miss Ada Kovachy, 48, of Cleveland, June 11 in a traffic accident here.

The youth, Richard Strohminger, of 202 Newman street, wept after Judge C H. Huston pronounced sentence. Released on $2,000 bond more than two weeks ago, Strohminger appeared in court with members of his family.

After sentence was passed, he was taken to the county jail by Deputy Sheriff Frank Robinson, and will remain there until removed to the reformatory this afternoon or tomorrow.

Through Atty. Harold Burns, appointed by the court, Strohminger admitted the accusations in the indictment, charging him with responsibility for Miss Kovachy's death. He was the driver of an automobile which crashed head-on into one in which Miss Kovachy and four other persons were riding, at the city limits on Lexington avenue. Miss Kovachy's three sisters and her nephew were injured in the crash.

Strohminger, who was driving a car owned by a friend, admitted drinking wine and beer at Bellville and Butler before the accident and driving at a high rate of speed.

Why Not 'Corrigan Day?' And Sure He Deserves It

Bold Airman's 'Mistake' Flight Stirs Up Enthusiasm of Mansfield's Sons of Erin.

By JANE WILLIAMS

Yesterday was a great day for the Irish, begorra, and there's them as thinks there ought to be a "Corrigan day" on the calendar—not too far away from St. Patrick's day.

All over the world today, Irishmen were singing the praises of a bold lad, Douglas G. Corrigan, who flew across the ocean "by mistake" from New York and landed in Dublin.

Mansfield may not have many Irish—but what they lack in number they make up in the enthusiasm of their acclaim for this young flier's audacious performance.

Here's What They Say.

If you've any doubt that young Corrigan has a warm spot in the hearts of Mansfield's Irish folk, read what they had to say today:

Thomas J. Hanley, West First street—Did the lad know where he was going? There never was an Irishman so dumb he didn't know where he was going. Young Douglas Corrigan is a credit to the Irish the world over, with his fine flying and his courage.

Thomas L. Kenny, 57 Columbia avenue—It's the greatest flight of them all since Lindbergh—and it took an Irishman to do it 'Twas a wonderful feat and there was nothing crackbrained about it. The lad is reliable, and I think he planned it all carefully to set his plane down in Dublin, which he did. You can't beat the Irish, now, can you?

Morgan Resumes Testimony in Investigation of TVA.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(INS)—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, deposed chairman of the TVA, today was to resume his testimony before the congressional investigating committee probing the New Deal project.

In his first appearance before the probers yesterday, Dr Morgan accused "some member" of the agency's board of giving out confidential TVA reports to newspaper columnists, adding that the columnists then proceeded to "make sport" of him in print

Dr. Morgan, whose dismissal by President Roosevelt provided the backdrop for the open hearings now under way, also started his defense of his stewardship as chairman.

Guns Roar Salute as British Rulers Arrive on French Soil

(By United Press)

PARIS—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain came to France today for a state visit of friendship which marked a red letter event in current European history.

They arrived at Boulogne in the British admiralty yacht Enchantress after a voyage from Dover, under escort of British and French warships, and left by special train for Paris where President Albert Lebrun welcomed them.

As they entered Boulogne harbor, to a salute of 101 guns and the cheers of French sailors and the thousands of people massed at the waterfront, a monument, a statue of Britannia, was unveiled there to the little British expeditionary force which arrived at Boulogne in August, 1914, to face virtual annihilation before the invading German hordes. King King George saluted as the British flag which draped the monument was lowered.

The visit was designed to show the close and intimate relations of two countries whose destinies were linked as allies. It was a warning of caution to other powers of Europe, as was the last state visit of a British monarch to France in 1914, a few weeks before outbreak of the World war.

For four days the British royal couple will be the honored guests of President Albert Lebrun, the cabinet and the people of France.

CORRIGAN SEES PREMIER IN A BORROWED TIE

Cravat Loaned From American Minister Brightens Greasy, Wrinkled Attire.

STILL 'ALL A MISTAKE'

Even De Valera's Told That Trip East Was Intended for Trip West in Junk Plane.

By PETER KILROY
(INS Staff Correspondent)

DUBLIN—Wide-eyed with astonishment, Premier Eamon De Valera today heard Douglas Corrigan tell in his own words the amazing story of his non-stop flight "by mistake" from New York to Dublin.

Still in his greasy, wrinkled flying togs, the California aviator was received by the American-born premier in his offices in the government buildings. Sympathizing with the flier's bedraggled appearance, this correspondent offered to take Corrigan downtown and help him buy some new clothing but received this reply:

"Aw, you can't do that. I'm all right"

Sticks To Story.

The meeting took place in De Valera's private chambers. The premier, himself a precedent-shattering revolutionary whose life has been a turbulent battle for Irish freedom, stuck out his hand and congratulated Corrigan on a "very happy landing."

Corrigan told the premier the same weird story he had spilled to newspapermen on his unheralded arrival at Baldonnel airport yesterday—that he thought he was flying from New York to Los Angeles and involuntarily achieved the Atlantic hop because of a faulty compass setting.

Frequently blinking with incredulity, De Valera told Corrigan he was lucky to find a safe landing on this side of the ocean. He assure him that Eire would

AWAITS STORK

Wife of Franklin D., Jr., Taken to Philadelphia Hospital.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D Roosevelt, jr., was a patient today in the Philadelphia Lying-In hospital, but her husband was non-committal about the expected time of the stork's arrival.

"It might even be in September," said the third son of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

He brought his wife, the former Ethel du Pont, to Philadelphia late yesterday from Owl's Nest, the estate of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont, near Wilmington, Del.

Mrs Roosevelt was dressed in navy blue and wore a gold straw hat with turned-up brim. She became the bride of the president's son June 30, last year.

Wage-Hour Chief

Co-operation of industry and not police methods will be relied on to enforce the wage-hour act said Elmer Andrews when he assumed his new post as chief of the federal branch regulating labor conditions. SAWYER SWINGS INTO CITY TODAY

Cincinnatian Expected to Hit at Davey Again in Talk Tonight at Park.

Swinging into Richland county in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor, Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, is expected to renew his attack on the Davey administration when he speaks at 7:30 p. m. today at a rally in Central park.

Sawyer will arrive in the city this afternoon from Mt. Vernon where he spoke last night and accused Davey of "coercing state employes" to work for his support in the primary.

Although leaders in the Sawyer organization in Richland county had not been informed today of the substance of his talk here tonight, they said he probably would discuss campaign issues, including labor, state economy, and the recent grand jury investigation of state offices.

In Cincinnati last night, Davey asserted that "John L. Lewis would run Ohio" if Sawyer is elected to succeed him. He accused Sawyer of being "a puppet of Lewis and the CIO."

Sawyer is scheduled to meet voters at the Mansfield-Leland hotel from 2 to 4 p. m. today and early this evening will visit the American Legion home. In the event of rain, his talk will be given in the courthouse

G. A. Baer, chairman of the Richland county Sawyer-for-governor organization, will preside at the meeting, and Atty. John C. O'Donnell will introduce Sawyer.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y. —(AP)— George F. Johnson, chairman of the board of directors of the Endicott-Johnson corporation, shoe manufacturers, informed the company's 20,000 employes today: "We are running out of the so-called recession into normal conditions."

Johnson announced a "decided improvement" in the concern's orders and said "last week's orders were the largest, in number of dozens, we have had in a year."

EAST LIVERPOOL—Pottery manufacturers here, commenting on recent New York showing of new products, expressed "satisfaction" with orders placed.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—New orders booked by the lumber industry in the week ended July 9 were the highest of any week during the past 11 months, the National Lumber Manufacturer's Association reported today.

Booked orders for the week, which included the July 4 holiday, totaled 225,146,000 feet compared with 223,298,000 feet in the preceding week. For the first time this year new orders were above the 1937 week.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today that developments of the past month indicate that the low point in consumer incomes and in demand for farm products has been reached. It predicted the general trend of business activity during the coming year probably will be upward.

NEW YORK—(UP)— American families are building their own homes this year at a steadily increasing rate which may well prove the forerunner of a new private dwelling construction boom, according to F. W. Dodge Corp.

A survey of 37 eastern states revealed that this trend has mounted progressively from month to month since the beginning of the year. In June the total of contracts for owner-occupied homes was more than three times as great as in January and showed a decisive margin over June, 1937.

CONVICT SHOT, PAL BEATEN AS PLOT FIZZLES

TRIED TO FLEE BEFORE

Signal to Clerk Leads to Sounding of Prison Alarm and Capture of Pair.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—An Ohio penitentiary guard was stabbed seriously today during a frustrated prison break in which one convict was shot and another badly beaten.

The prisoners tried a daring escape by kidnaping two guards and a deputy warden within the institution walls.

Stabbed in the abdomen, Guard Raymond T. Thornton was in a serious condition.

Clyde Staup, 28, convicted Allen county robber, was shot in the groin and side, and Charles Menges, 28, sentenced to a life term from Hamilton county for murder, was badly beaten and at first pretended that he was shot.

Fires Six Times.

Guard Elmer Callahan fired six shots as the two convicts approached the prison gates menacing with knives Deputy Warden William Walker and Guards Sherman Riley and Fred Kaestner.

The prisoners accosted Walker in the dining hall and forced him at the point of the butcher knife to walk in front of them to the entrance.

When the convicts approached the gate, Guard Thornton interfered and was stabbed as Walker broke away.

Other guards, who had been warned in advance by an alert clerk in Walker's office, came rushing out of the guard room swinging clubs and thwarted the escape try.

Both of the prisoners were involved in an attempted break Dec. 7, 1936.

Staup was sentenced to the prison in June, 1934, and Menges in March, 1933.

They had been exercising in the prison yard, but refused to return to their cells.

DRAFTS REPORT

Council Group Meets Tonight on Night Club Request.

Council's special committee considering the proposal to amend the night club "curfew" ordinance is scheduled to meet tonight to draft its recommendations.

Councilman Russell D. Porch, chairman of the three-man committee, said the report is expected to be submitted to council at a special meeting this week. Other members of the committee are James E. Crum and Lester D. Hunter.

Porch declined to comment on whether the recommendation would urge an extension of closing hours for liquor establishments.

The Permit Holders' association recently presented a petition to council asking a 1:30 a. m. closing for night clubs on weekdays and Saturday nights. The city ordinance prohibits the sale of liquor after 1 a. m. during the week and after midnight on Saturdays.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME, BROKERS URGE RENTERS

Why Pay Cost of Someone's Home When Payments Can Help Self, They Ask.

"You are buying a home for someone; why not for yourself?"

Brokers generally are adopting this as their theme in the sale of properties now standing and ready for sale, C. Connor of the C. Connor Realty company, declares.

"Any renter is helping pay for some property," said Conner. "He could as well be investing in a permanent home for himself and his children.

"Home seekers always have been able to get homes on credit, with a comparatively small down payment. But today, they can pay for homes like rent and part of every payment is applied to ownership. The old, standard mortgage is a thing of the past.

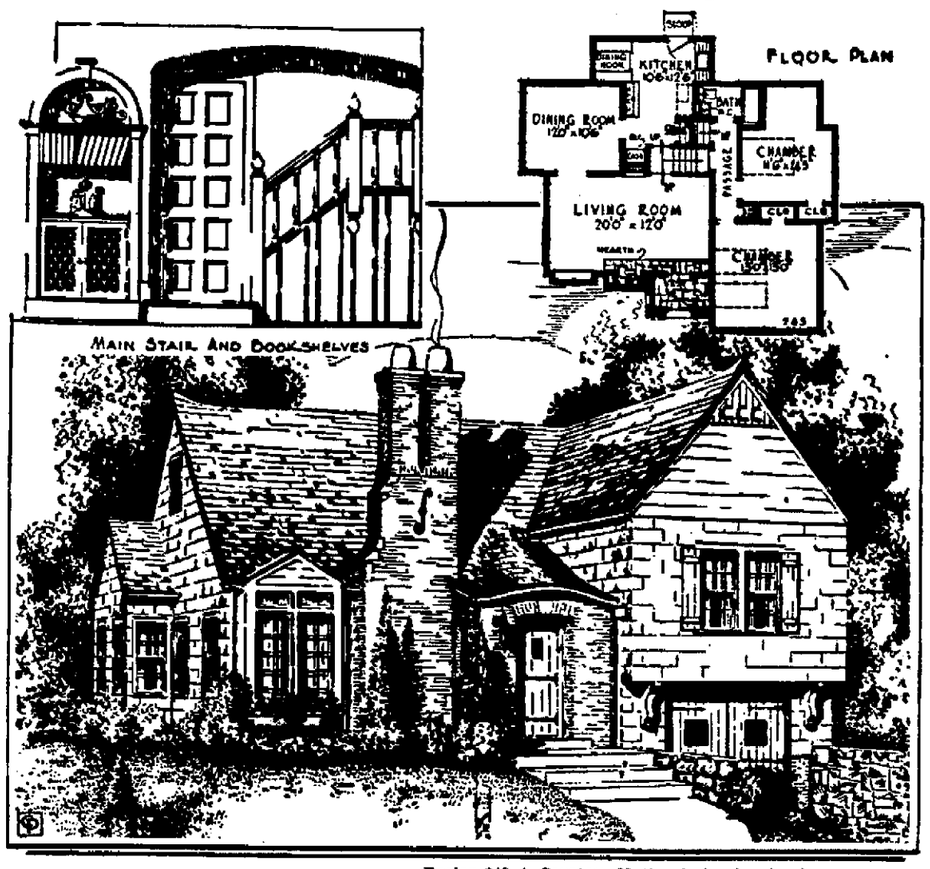
"The Home Owners' Loan corporation virtually changed the whole mortgage picture, when it stepped in with its low-interest, long - term, amortization loan. Thousands of persons who never would have owned their homes, who would have carried mortgages for the rest of their lives, now are counting the years until they will have debt-free homes.

"While HOLC has been forced to take over many homes, these represent only a very small percentage of the million homes the corporation set out to salvage. These homes are now being offered at fair, competitive values, set by the corporation, and are handled on commission by brokers. They are good investments.

"No one argues against the desirability of a new home. But at the same time, just as there are fine values in used cars, there are good investments in good houses, standing in fine neighborhoods.

"There are fewer good rentable properties available now than for many years. At the same time, there are scores of good properties in every community which can be bought for rent money. Down payments can be as low as 10 per cent, providing the prospect can prove he is a good credit risk, and a buyer is given 15 years to pay. Interest, rates on HOLC properties, for instance, are only 5 per cent, the lowest in the history of the country.

Spacious English - Type Bungalow



Design 243-A, Courtesy National Plan Service, Inc., Chicago

Design for five-room bungalow with basement garage.

(By Central Press)

On a hillside lot the garage may sometimes be attached to the house but put on a lower level than the living rooms.

This English type of house is built in bungalow fashion, only the two bedrooms are raised six steps above the main floor and the space below is utilized for a convenient garage. It is frame construction.

The plan is very attractive, the house containing five rooms—large living with open hearth, dining room, kitchen, dining nook, two bedrooms and bath. The dining room projects beyond the living room.

A built-in bookcase occupies a space beside the staircase which ascends from the rear of the living room. One of its shelves makes a convenient location for the telephone.

The size of the main building of this house is 34 feet six inches by 31 feet; size over all, 40 feet by 41 feet four inches. The house, including the garage, contains 13,750 cubic feet.

CHANGE NURSERY

To make over the outgrown nursery into a room for a girl of sub-deb age, the application of an all-over stencil design of white daisies and blue cornflowers on a yellow wall is decidedly pleasing. Mahogany furniture, white organdy curtains with wide, full-pleaded ruffles, a white chenille bedspread and white lamps complete the attractive picture.

The chief bridge of Venice is the Rialto, spanning the Grand Canal. It is 74 feet long and 32 feet high.

Breakfast Nook For Dining Room Aids Housewife

In houses that have full-sized dining rooms it is frequently desirable to dedicate a corner for a breakfast nook, especially when there are junior members in the family.

The nook should have a built-in cabinet for the breakfast dishes and the children's silverware and dishes. Here also can be kept the electric cooking equipment such as grill, percolator, and waffle iron.

A folding table hinged to the wall may be built in. By having a breakfast nook, housework can be lessened and wear and tear on the dining room furniture lessened.

Forty-two co-operative burial associations now operating in the United States offer their members inexpensive funeral rates.

NEW USE FOUND FOR OUTMODED PARLOR; LIVABILITY ENHANCED

A living room should be all that the name implies. It should be cheerful, comfortably equipped, well lighted and ventilated, and large enough to accommodate the entire family. In many existing houses built a number of years ago the front of the house was divided into two rooms—the living room and parlor.

The parlor was usually a coldly formal room that was seldom used and that gradually fell into disuse.

Where such a room exists a modernization project that throws the living room and the parlor into one large useable space will be appreciated by the entire family and will enhance the livability of the downstairs of the home.

All that usually needs to be done is to remove the separating wall between the rooms. It may be that a wide doorway may seem to be an appropriate way of making the change. If so, part of the old wall may be left standing, arched or finished with a wood frame and decorated to simulate columns.

HEATS BATHROOM

While not an altogether timely topic for summer discussion, the installation of a built-in bathroom heater is a timely improvement. In the cold winter mornings these newly designed instantaneous heaters make rising less arduous and do not take up space that can be utilized for other and more necessary purposes.

AID TO HEALTH

In the present country-wide drive against disease, authorities are pointing to the necessity for the cleanliness of public rest rooms, particularly in filling stations and bus terminals. Keeping the interior of these rooms well painted with good quality paint that will stand frequent washing, will do much to make such rooms more sanitary and free from germs.

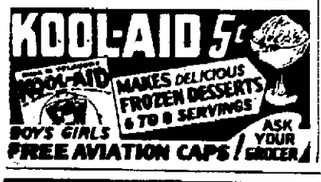
PLAN PICNIC.

Circle One of the Park Avenue Baptist church will have a picnic at 1 p. m. at South Park Friday.



Comfort, Smart Contrast Important Requirements of Beach Wear

For fun at the beach, in the water, just paddling about or actively swimming, present fashions show how decorative practical suits can be. Comfort is, of course, the first requisite of the swim or beach suit—which has not always been true of women's fashions. The suits shown above are knitted wool, light in weight, resilient and flattering to the figure.

The one-piece suit at the left is in a dark color and has a pretty star trimming in clusters, while a bow finishes the neckline and the suit ties at the back. A touch of contrast is noted in the white suit made in a waffle weave, and trimmed in gay bandings and a bow of color. It is the halter neckline style with a sun-tan back. The other suit is the popular shorts and bra type, the shorts being laced at the sides and having a neat little pocket and white belt. The bra is white with an interesting pattern in colors, and the straps match the shorts.

—Advice—

Stinginess Hazardous To Marriage

By VIRGINIA LEE

Real stinginess is a horrible trait. I'd advise any girl who is in love with a stingy man to break off her engagement immediately. She'll grow to hate him if she marries him. And the same applies to the man in love with a too, too thrifty young woman.

Stinginess means that a person cares more for material things than he does for people. He must accumulate, hoard. It is a passion for seeing a pile of things growing and growing for the sake of collecting, not for any good they may do.

"Very close and covetous, meanly avaricious; miserly," says Mr. Webster, defining the word.

J. says she has been going with a boy for more than a year and he tells her that he loves her. Holiday times he sends her cards. When he was not working she paid her own way when they went anywhere, but he now has a good job, and she knows he has money to spend. Occasionally he takes her to a show and then straight home.

"Now, Miss Lee, I'm not a golddigger," she writes, "nor do I expect a lot from any boy, but doesn't every girl like to be remembered on these special occasions with a few flowers or a box of candy, at least? I'm beginning to feel different toward him. Do you think there's happiness for me being married to anyone like that?"

No, I don't, if he really is stingy. You don't want money to be your rival in a man's affections. If he is stingy with you now when he is trying to win you, you can expect very little after you are married. Be sure it is stinginess with him before you break off with him. Don't be unjust. You can tell by the way he talks and acts over his expenses, his attitude toward his family, as well as toward yourself. If he is always thinking of saving money and never of what he can do with it to make other people happy or to pay fairly for what he gets, stop going with him, the sooner the better.

Personally, I'd rather have to contend with almost any other fault than that. It is bad and apt to grow worse as time goes on.

* * *

SHELBY: If the boy has a bad reputation, better keep away from him. At least better get to know him better before you acknowledge that you love him. Speak when you meet him, but I think from what you tell me you had better make more earnest and successful efforts to forget him.

Keep weeds suppressed by cultivation and get rid of all debris and brush around the garden area. All such material offers hibernating grounds for pests and leaves them on the ground for an early attack next season.

When making scalloped oysters sprinkle ¼ teaspoon of baking powder into the rolled cracker crumbs and add 1 well-beaten egg to the milk, if using 1 pint of oysters. The result is light, tasty scallops.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FLARE FOR FANCINESS

It is a mistake to spurn the lowly finesse and strive always to make a fancy end play or squeeze. Sometimes a finesse can be the surest kind of safety play, when taken before other suits have been run and before outstanding thirteeners have been set up. The finest players may strive to avoid unnecessary finesses, but when one is clearly the correct play, they do not let any flare for fanciness keep them from using it.

This deal arose in a rubber game and the South player started the bidding with 1-No Trump. After a response of 2-No Trumps by North, South called 4-No Trumps and North took this to 6-No Trumps.

When the club J was led, declarer won in the South hand with the A. He then ran four diamond tricks and, noticing that West discarded three hearts, decided that 13 tricks could be made instead of a small slam. He next cashed the spades A, K and Q and when the suit failed to break, went after the clubs, cashing the K and Q. He was not disappointed that that suit did not clear, because of the original lead, but read West as holding now one club, one spade and one heart, and being quite sure that West would not have blanked the K, took that finesse. When it failed, West cashed his three tricks.

East's safety play is to enter dummy at the second trick and take the finesse at once, then running his twelve tricks.

Give Time to Beauty While Awaiting Baby

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

BEING A mother is just about the most exciting and satisfying experience that a woman can have. If you are one of the happy ones who are expecting a baby, then you are going through a period of waiting for which you will be rewarded a hundredfold.

It is only human, however, simply because you are so anxiously awaiting the event, for you to feel that these nine months are the longest months you have ever spent in your whole life. You probably will have more time around the house than you ever have had before, so take advantage of your condition to take care of the beauty problems that often come at this time. Sensible routines that you go through every day will make the time pass quickly and will certainly help you to be a lovelier mother.

Sometimes your skin may lose some of its freshness, and it is not at all unusual for blemishes to appear. Don't worry about these minor skin ailments. Your system is adjusting itself to great changes and they are only temporary. If you drink water in large quantities it will help you to avoid these troubles, because the water flushes the system and carries away impurities, thus giving your skin a much better opportunity to remain clear.

Be sure to give your skin a careful cleansing night and morning and get a weekly treatment or facial massage if possible. This little weekly pampering will do wonders in keeping your skin in condition.

Even if you get blemishes, in spite of your greatest care, don't be discouraged. They almost always disappear after the birth of the baby. Apply a little alcohol on a piece of absorbent cotton to these occasional pimples. This will make them dry up sooner.

Give Attention to Hair.

Now is an excellent time to give extra attention to your hair. There is no reason why it should lose its brightness and become drab and lifeless. Give it a good daily brushing with a clean scalp-invigorating brush. A weekly scalp massage of from ten to fifteen minutes will be a fine scalp stimulant and keep your hair in condition. If you find it falling out a little more than usual don't be alarmed. This is no more permanent than the blemishes.

When you begin to feel stronger and are still resting in bed after your baby is born, try to make a habit of massaging your scalp for two or three minutes at a time, as often as you think of it. This is a splendid way of encouraging the growth of your new hair.

Spend a little time on your nails during your period of waiting. It will make you feel cheery to know that hair and nails are at their best for the most important event of your life.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, July 20.

AN EXTREMELY lively and enterprising day is read from the prevailing lunar transits, although it would be easy to bungle promising situations and sidetrack very expansive and propitious situations by indulgence in reckless, impulsive or tumultuous conduct. This might refer to personal indulgences or private complications that will jeopardize the financial status, credit or popularity. All pertainings to writings, publishing, advertising or promotions should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of promising conditions, with much business stirring, finances on the increase and a general state of progress and prosperity existing. But these might all be negatived by personal indulgences, indiscretions, waywardness, impetuosity or strife.

A child born on this day may be talented, enterprising and well equipped for success. However, a tendency to an impetuous, turbulent, jealous and vindictive behavior may nullify its most promising opportunities.

Tomorrow's Problem.

How should South play for 4-Hearts after the lead of the spade J?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I LIKE the way you say, 'We'll get to work on this code message'," Dicky gibed when we were seated opposite each other across the table in my father's room. "Just what do you expect me to do? You know I don't know a code letter from a rabbit's left eye."

"If you'll take pencil and paper and jot down the words and figures I give you," I said when I had stopped laughing, "you'll help me immeasurably. Here! This way, I mean."

I quickly drew vertical lines down the sheet of paper, separating it into columns, and numbering at the top from one to six.

"I'll give you first the number of the column—thus 'Column one'," I began, "and next the words or figures I want in it. It will save me a lot of work, and I'll have it all before me in record time."

"All right, 'fire when you're ready, Gridley'," he intoned, and we set to work in earnest.

News Astonishing.

It was not a hard task, as my father's tasks go, for I have known terrific sessions in code deciphering at his behest. But when the finished message lay before me, I stared at it in mute astonishment. "Well! What's the bad news?" Dicky asked, as I laid down my pencil and picked up the paper for a final reading. "You look as if Medusa were appearing in person at this premiere."

"I feel a little that way," I told him. "Listen to this!"

"Soft pedal!" he warned, for in my excitement my voice had risen.

I nodded my thanks, muted my tones to a whisper, and read the message I had just decoded.

"Prepare for four guests tonight," I said. "Put two of them in barred room—two single beds. You will know when they come. If children can go away early tomorrow and stay all day under guard somewhere, it will be wise, but not absolutely necessary. You will all be adequately guarded. Guests will explain. Hope it will not be long now until I see you."

"Well! I'll be eternally ginswizzled," Dicky ejaculated when I had finished reading the message. "If that doesn't beat the Dutch and all other favored nations! What do you suppose the old boy has up his sleeve now?"

"I haven't the slightest idea" I answered. "But whatever else it means, this is certain: I shall have to get to work at once. You know Father. If he sent word to the trooper to have that detour made from 10 o'clock on, that means—"

"That our guests will arrive shortly after 10," Dicky said, "your father having a distinct yen for doing things up brown with the least possible expenditure of time and effort."

Forgot Captain's Tray.

"Exactly," I said. "I must get Jim to work shifting beds at once, and Katie will have to prepare supper. Oh!—"I started violently.

"What's the matter?" Dicky demanded. "You act as if you'd just closed your lily-white fingers upon a wasp."

"I'll feel more like it when I see Katie," I answered.

Dicky stared at me, then struck a fist into the palm of the other hand

"My sainted aunt's mother-in-law!" he exclaimed. "You told Katie to fix a tray for the captain and he went off without it!"

"Exactly!" I returned. "I shall have to go down at once and make my peace with her."

"Yes. She probably went across town on that tray," he agreed, as I picked up the papers we had used in the decoding of the message and, putting them in the fireplace, set fire to them.

"If you'll see to those while I lock this away," I said, and Dicky answered the unfinished sentence quickly.

"Not a cinder will be left," he said, "and if you want to get down to Katie quickly, I'll stay here and lock up."

Look at Sally. Dick's gritting his teeth with embarrassment as she waves her arms and cheers wildly during the crucial game of the tennis match.

And he can't help noticing, too, how silly her frilly afternoon frock looks beside the other girls' smart, simple sports costumes.

The rules are: Don't talk or cheer while the play is going on at a tennis game—and don't talk or move until after the player has made his shot in a golf match. At baseball games you may cheer enthusiastically any time.

To any summer sports event, wear a light-colored sports dress or suit and a simple felt, linen or straw hat.

Be up on all the little points of eiquette that make friends for you. After visiting a schoolmate for the week-end, write two bread-and-butter letters—one to your chum and one to her mother.

If you would like to have more Oriental poppies, there is an easy way to multiply these plants. Dig up several of them now and cut off the roots just below the crown. Then divide each root into sections 2 inches long, and plant each bit in a hole 2 or 3 inches deep. Put them in where you want them to flower, however, becauses these poppies rather resent transplanting. If the work is done now, you should have blooming plants next season. Moreover you will be sure to get plants exactly like those of the parent.

Grease marks on pages of books may be removed by sponging them with benzine, placing them between two sheets of blotting paper and pressing with a hot iron.

CORNS COME BACK BIGGER-UGLIER

OLD-FASHIONED home paring is dangerous! It means risk of infection and only affects the surface of a corn—leaves the root* to come back bigger, uglier, more painful than ever!

Don't take chances. Follow the example of millions and play safe with the modern, double-action Blue-Jay method. The tiny medicated Blue-Jay plaster stops pain instantly by removing pressure, then in 3 short days the corn lifts out root and all (exceptionally stubborn cases may require a second application). Blue-Jay is easy to use—invisible. Safe—scientific—quick-acting. Only 25¢ for a package of 6. Same price in Canada.

WHAT a time the Hollywood publicity men must have! Just about the time they get a swell publicity story accepted by the newspapers of the nation, a real news story breaks which makes the publicity story look sick . . . It has happened thousands of times. Most frequent is the story by a star on "How to Be Happy in Marriage," which breaks at the same time her divorce story hits the front page . . . Publicity men sent out stories of Margaret Lindsay's romance with Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt the same day his marriage to another girl took place . . .

Dix in "Blind Alibi."

A "seeing eye" dog, carefully trained to "see" for a blind person, is one of the characters in "Blind Alibi," which the Madison presents Wednesday and Thursday. This is a Richard Dix picture, made at the same studio which turned out his greatest film — "Cimarron." Dix is an amateur detective in search of a small but dangerous packet of love letters. In carrying out his gallant mission he poses as a sculptor who has lost his sight, and runs afoul of a blackmailing gang. A pretty curator at a museum injects romance into the story of mystery and intrigue. Whitney Bourne, Frances Mercer, Eduardo Ciannelli, Paul Guilfoyle and others are in the cast. Ace, one of the best trained movie dogs, plays the "seeing eye."

Benchley Instructions.

There are two unusually interesting short subjects at the Ohio this week, both of which have "box office appeal." One is another of the Robert Benchley series on how to do things, and this time he tells how to raise a baby—and mothers will be amazed at what can happen to a baby under the Benchley system. The second subject is the latest release of "March of Time" and is the inside story of the U. S. Coast Guard—its work, its training and its activities. It tells of the coast guard's work in smashing the smuggling rackets. The increasing importance of movie short subjects is demonstrated by the fact that almost as many movie patrons are attracted by them as by the long feature picture. A Dick Powell-Pat O'Brien comedy, "Cowboy From Brooklyn," is the main feature on the Ohio bill.

Excitement A-Plenty.

There's a lot of excitement to be had on a New York to San Francisco transport trip, if "13 Hours By Air" is any indication. There's something happening every minute of the trip, from attempted murder to attempts to crack up the plane. Eight persons are aboard the plane and there's no end of excitement before they reach their destination. The eight are Fred MacMurray as first pilot; John Howard as co-pilot; Joan Bennett as a runaway heiress; Alan Baxter, who is probably a murderer; Brian Donlevy as the bad egg that he usually is; Fred Keating, who'd like to see the plane grounded; Bennie Bartlett, who's worth a million if he lands in San Francisco, and Zazu Pitts, who is just going for a ride. The second feature at the Majestic, also a reissue is "Rhythm on The Range" with Bing Crosby and a flock of stars.

That Playing Feud.

"Love and Hisses," which is booked for showing at the Ritz Wednesday and Thursday is a picturization of the famous "feud" between Ben Bernie and Walter Winchell and which has spelled yards of publicity for both of them. The radio star and the star columnist head the cast, which also has Simone Simon, Bert Lahr and Joan Davis. The "feud" flares when Winchell pans Bernie's French "find" and in return the Old Maestro slips one over on the columnist which looks like the knockout blow. While the feud waxes hot, the French "find" develops a love affair with Dick Baldwin, a tunesmith. Another phase of the newspaper world is pictured in "King of Newsboys," also on the bill, which features Lew Ayers, Helen Mack and Alison Skipworth.

It is time to harvest the onions when the tops begin to ripen. You should pull the bulbs and allow them to lie on the ground for two or three days until they are well cured. Choose good weather for this work, though, for the onions may be badly damaged if they lie outside in a rainstorm. After they have dried somewhat in the open air it will be well to place them in a well-ventilated room, spreading them out thinly on the floor so that the drying process can be continued a week or two. You will never have success in keeping onions if they are put away when filled with moisture.

Poor Officiating Threatens Circuit

Home-Town Decisions Prove Costly to Legion In Game Played In New Philadelphia.

Battle Waged By Dominion, Nick's Clubs Keep Interest Alive In Commercial League.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

IT IS SUGGESTED that Joe Donnelly, president of the Central Ohio semi-pro league in which Mansfield is represented by the American Legion club, check up on the umpires before poor officiating threatens the future of the circuit.

An official of the type of "Darby" Yarman, who calls 'em as he sees 'em.

Officiating difficulties have been encountered in virtually every city in which the Legionnaires have appeared, and were responsible for at least a couple of defeats Manager Dewey Durant contends.

Probably the worst exhibition of umpiring was encountered in New Philadelphia Sunday when the Legionnaires dropped a 3 to 1 decision to the hosts.

According to Durant, the decision by the home-town umpires not only robbed Mansfield of several runs, but aided the New Phillies in their scoring.

Durant points out that the umpiring at Coshocton and Newark has been of the same caliber, but the results were not as costly as in New Philadelphia.

The matter of calling 'em will be taken up by Durant with Donnelly this week, but there will be little chance to correct this problem until the selection of umpires is left up to the league president instead of the home team managers.

Mansfield is one of the few cities in the circuit where the umpiring has been of high order, and Durant is fortunate to be able to obtain

Two-Team Fight Features Commercial League.

THERE is no lack of excitement in the Y. M. C. A. Commercial softball league, and it is not likely that interest in the circuit will dwindle until the curtain is rung down in mid-August.

The Dominion Electrics and Nick's Place are tied for first place, and neither team shows any signs of cracking. Their meeting on Aug. 3 will probably decide the championship.

Games Wednesday will find Nick's team meeting the Tappan Stoves at Liberty park and the Electrics tangling with the All-State Freights at Prospect park. The Page Dairys face Sweet's Gulf Oils at Empire field and the Hartman Electrics engage Miller's Dairys at North park the other games.

Reds 'Pack 'em In' at Crosley Field.

WIN OR LOSE, Cincinnati's unpredictable Reds have been "packing 'em in" at Crosley Field this year in a manner unlike any other team since the halcyon days of 1919 and 1926. With Boston there today for a double-header—and the season at the half-way mark so far as the Reds are concerned—the unofficial home attendance was 396,281, or within 40,000 of the aggregate for all of 1937.

Manager Bill McKechnie awaits a $5,000 bonus—provision of his two-year contract last fall—should total home attendance reach the 450,000 mark.

It also means that only 250,000 more fans must attend to equal the all-time attendance record for the club—roughly 650,000 in 1926, when the team was nosed out of the National league pennant by a slim margin. Four more night games, including one Wednesday, should average better than 15,000 per contest.

Pirates Survive Acid Test, Win Series From New York

Pittsburgh Takes Measure of Giants, 7 to 4, to Cinch Series, Retain First Place.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY, United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Pittsburgh finally has passed the acid test and today all the skeptics had to accept the Pirates as a team to reckon with in the National league pennant race.

Hurling back the champion New York Giants in a bitter series, the Pirates not only held first place but had proved to themselves that they can stand toe-to-toe and battle with any team in the league.

New York has long been a Pittsburgh Nemesis, more than once crushing their pennant hopes so severely that they subsequently collapsed.

More Than 1937.

Not so this season. The Pirates already have won seven games from the Giants, one more than they won all last year. In capturing the series final yesterday they bounced back from a disappointing Sunday double-header in which they were able to salvage only a tie game. The Pirates won the series, two games to one.

Johnny Rizzo and Lloyd Waner led Pittsburgh's attack yesterday in a 7-4 victory. Rizzo hit a homer with two men on in the sixth, breaking up a pitcher's battle between Harry Gumbert and Cy Blanton. The Pirates then clubbed Dick Coffman for four runs in the seventh. Blanton weakened in the eighth and Bill Swift came in to put out the fire.

The red-hot Chicago Cubs continued their dash to get back into the pennant race by defeating the Boston Bees, 7-6, for their seventh straight victory. Tex Carleton held the Bees safely until the ninth when Tony Cuccinello's double with the bases loaded drove in three runs to tie the score. Then the Cubs put over the winning tally when Gabby Hartnett singled in the ninth. Clay Bryant, who pitched to only one batter, received credit for his eighth victory. The Cubs now trail the Pirates by 4½ games.

Trim Phillies, 5-3.

In the only other major league game the St Louis Cardinals won from the Phillies, 5-3.

All American league clubs had an off-day.

Baseball's First 99 Years

Dickson, Nail To Show New Filly at Fair

Yearling to Appear in Exhibition at Next Week Races.

The Mansfield stable of Roy Dickson and E. S. Nail hoisted its colors a little more proudly today and the reason was the acquisition of a yearling filly that gives promise of doing things as great or maybe greater than Dickson-Nail-owned King Vagabond.

The filly was purchased from Irwin Sheiber of Indianapolis and at a trial on the fairground track paced one-eighth of a mile in the good time of 16½ seconds.

Fairground Talking.

The test stretch achievement not only elated the filly's newly acquired owners but set the whole fairground talking.

The filly was sired by Red Ace and is an offspring of Lassie Direct.

The youngster will make her debut before a Mansfield racing audience when the Richland county fair race program gets under way for a three-day run next week. She will circle the track in an exhibition event.

Meanwhile, it appears that B. H. Huston, superintendent of the speed program at the fair, will realize earlier predictions that in the neighborhood of 250 horses will be on hand for the race program, the first outstanding one Mansfield has had since the days of Short Ship meetings here.

New entries are arriving daily. More than a hundred head of Grand Circuit and Short Ship trotters and pacers are already quartered at the track.

Sets New Record.

King Vagabond arrived at the Dickson-Nail stable only the other day. He set a world record for trotters on clipping off one and a sixteenth miles in 2:13⅓ at Canfield, O., on June 20.

Four events will be run off each afternoon of the fair, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Turn Down Track Fence To Provide Better View

Workmen today had completed turning down the fence at the Richland county fairgrounds to provide an open view of the entire race track.

With the fence down, B. H. Huston, in charge of the speed program, said a clear view of the track can be obtained from any point in the spectators' stands and other vantage points.

The fence obstruction had caused criticism from race fans in the past.

Linster Busts Mark Hardly 24 Hours Old

Shoots Brilliant 67 to Break Season Record Set By Stout at Possum Run Day Before.

JIMMY STOUT'S claim to a new season scoring record at Possum Run was stricken from the books yesterday.

Hardly 24 hours after Stout established a record 68, Pete Linster toured the Washington township layout in one less stroke to become the new record holder yesterday.

After crashing through with a 34 on the inside nine in a News-Journal Class A league match, Linster beat darkness and par with a scintillating 33 on the outside layout for a brilliant 67, four under perfect figures.

Wife Shoots 75.

Incidentally, the Linsters now hold both the men's and women's records at Possum Run. His wife, Thelma, hung up a record 75 for women earlier this season, an all-time as well as a 1938 mark.

Linster's 34 won medal honors in the league yesterday, but he had plenty of competition as the scoring as a whole was spectacular. Only five of the 24 golfers participating in the matches failed to break 40.

The new record holder's chief challengers for medal honors were Vin Malaska of the DeLuxe Cabs and Paul Jesson of the Big Three Beers who poled out 35's. Al Kushin and Kleshinski of the Yuncker Sports and Zeides of the Goldsmith Clothiers rapped out 36's.

The only change in the standings found the rampaging Yuncker Sports continuing their climb upward by tying the Goldsmith team for third place.

The Sports defeated the Big Three Beers, 4 to 1, with Dr. D. M. Leuthner going three extra holes to defeat Fay Strome in the highlight of the match.

Kushin and Kleshinski, of course, were low for the Sports, but Leuthner and Anthony were not far behind with 38's.

Although defeated, the Beers also did well in the scoring column. Jesson's 35 was followed by 38's registered by Cipris and Loykovich and Strome's 39.

Cabs Hold Lead.

The DeLuxe Cabs remained in first place by trimming the Matthes Clothiers, 4 to 1, Malaska setting the pace. Deley had a 37 for the Cabs and Dillon a 39. Carl Kushin and Schadek shot 39's for the Clothiers.

The Richland Printers, led by Linster's sensational score, retained their grip on second place by outpointing the Goldsmith foursome, 3 to 2. Etzel, 37, and Harry Schlegel, 39, helping not a little. Pilot and Vild pounded out 38's for the Goldsmith entry.

Pirate Rookie Fined $25 For Joining in Argument

PITTSBURGH—(U.P.)—President Ford Frick of the National league today fined Johnny Rizzo, Pirate left fielder, $25 for leaving the bench and joining in an argument with Umpire Larry Goetz in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader with the New York Giants.

The altercation came up in the seventh inning when Pitcher Jim Tobin, pinch-hitting for Mace Brown, objected to being called out on strikes. Both Rizzo and Tobin were banished from the game.

SCHNITTKER SHELLS WIN IN ELEVENTH INNING, 8-7

In a 11-inning game in which the lead changed hands on several occasions, the Schnittker Shells defeated the Smokehouse softball team, 8 to 7, at Johns park yesterday. Bajia led the attack for the Shells with a pair of doubles. K. Mapes hit a home run for the losers.

Dick Kline of Ashland equalled the season scoring record at the Coolridge country club yesterday when he toured the nine-hole layout in 32, two under par.

The crack Ashland star registered seven pars and two birdies on his record run. His birdies were registered on No. 7 and 9.

Frank Lay accounted for his low score of the season at Coolridge yesterday when he blasted out a 39.

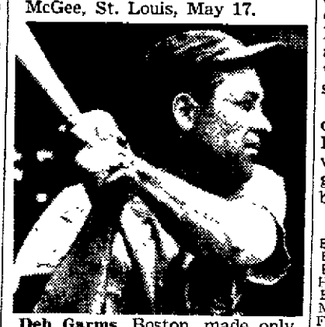
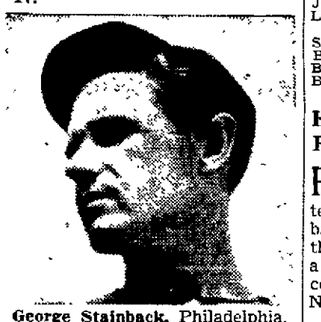
NO-HIT baseball games are rare. The only ones in the major leagues this season were pitched by Cincinnati's John Vander Meer, two in succession. Six other hurlers came close, just one hit away from the perfect game. Here are the reasons they failed:

A bunt by Bill Sullivan, St. Louis was the only hit off Cleveland's Bob Feller, April 20.

Goodwin Rosen, Brooklyn, spoiled no-hitters for Hal Schumacher, New York, April 24, and Bill McGee, St. Louis, May 17.



Deb Garms, Boston, made only hit off Pittsburgh's Russ Bauers-Rip Sewell combination, May 17.



George Stainback, Philadelphia, ruined the day for Carl Hubbell, New York, May 28.

Bride Hits Two Home Runs As Johnnies Triumph, 5-3

Al Stickler Yields Only Five Hits In Debut on Mound to Trim Sportsmen, 9 to 4.

NO PLAYOFF to determine the championship of the City Class A softball league will be necessary if the Johns Park boys have their way about it.

Johns Park, first half champion in the city's premier softball league sponsored by the recreation department, opened the second half of the split season in auspicious fashion yesterday by outpointing Liberty Park, 5 to 3, on the losers' diamond.

Sixth Straight.

Jimmy Fullager was on the hill for the Johnnies again yesterday, and he registered his sixth straight league triumph. The crafty right-hander yielded seven hits as he struck out seven and walked five.

John Bush, who opposed Fullager, gave up nine hits, and he might have fared better had it not been for seven errors committed by his teammates.

However, the chief thorn in Bush's side yesterday was Bob Bride, the Johnnies' first-sacker. Bride poled two home runs and a single to lead the winners at the plate.

Bride's first circuit clout came in the opening inning after Manager John Flockenzier's men had scored twice on Hunt's walk, Kenny Ross' double and Aston's bad throw to the plate.

Bush controlled the Johns' bats after Bride's first homer until the eighth. The slugging first-sacker broke the string of scoreless innings with his second round-tripper.

The winners' final run was registered in the same inning when Mahoney, who singled, scored on two errors.

Get to Fullager.

Liberty Park got to Fullager for a pair of runs in the third. A double by Aston and singles by Musille and Forman did the damage. Liberty's other run came in the ninth when Vogel's double scored Gemzer, who had walked.

The outstanding defensive play of the game was Forman's catch of Harry Ross' line drive in center, which, undoubtedly, would have gone for a home run had it not been for the snatch.

Home Runs Account For Six Runs.

PROSPECT park softballers established themselves as contenders for the City Class A softball league title yesterday when they opened the second round with a 9 to 4 victory over the Richland county Fish and Game team of North park on the home layout.

The victory was the third straight for Manager Johnny Valentine's men in the league, and placed them in a tie for first place today.

Scoreless After 2nd.

The Prospectors, who dropped their first four games this season, trailed at only the start of the game. After permitting two runs in each of the first two innings, Al Stickler settled down and held the North parkers scoreless the rest of the way.

Stickler, making his first appearance of the season on the mound, limited the losers to five hits. He yielded only one hit after the second inning.

The lanky twirler issued four passes, two figuring in the scoring. The Sportsmen never threatened seriously after the second.

Stickler also helped his own cause with a home run in the first two with two aboard. Nick Weber of Prospect, also hit for the circuit with two on.

Prospect obtained 13 hits off Bauer, who struck out six and walked a pair. Judy and Nick Weber, with three hits apiece, led the attack.

North park scored twice in the first. Channel sent the tallies across the plate with a single. Balbaugh, who had walked, and Vogel, who singled, were on the sacks.

Judy and Nick Weber singled for Prospect in the last of the first, and both scored on Stickler's four-bagger. Balbaugh's double sent France and Bauer home in the second to regain a 4 to 3 advantage for North park.

Gains Winning Lead.

Prospect never trailed after tallying two more in the third. Stickler got to first on an error and Frisbee singled, both scoring on Smith's single.

Valentine and Judy were on the sacks when Weber clouted his home run in the seventh. Frisbee's triple and Smith's long outfield fly gave Prospect its final tally in the eighth.

Harder Asks Only 'Three or Four Runs'

Confident He Can Stop Yanks in Series Opener.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Veteran Mel Harder, ordered to the mound for Cleveland, today asked only "three or four runs" from his teammates as the Tribe and the sizzling New York Yankees prepared to open a vitally important four-game series.

Given that many tallies, said Harder, Cleveland "will be in there." New York is pacing the American league with a one and one-half game margin over Cleveland.

Manager Joe McCarthy chose Monte Pearson to open the series for the Yanks. McCarthy indicated other starters during the Redskins' visit would be Lefty Gomez, Red Ruffing and Spud Chandler.

Oscar Vitt, Cleveland pilot, announced he would start Harder, Johnny Allen, Johnny Humphries and Bob Feller in that order.

"If the Yankees can beat that line-up, they're better than I think they are," Vitt remarked.

Athletic Team Beats Senators to Regain Lead.

Only one hit was obtained by the Athletics, but they won another ball game yesterday to regain undisputed possession of first place in the city recreation Intermediate baseball league at the Fairground. Winbigler was the Senators' unlucky pitcher who lost a 2 to 0 decision as his teammates failed to make any of the three hits collected off Burton count.

How About Feller, Brown In World Series?

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Henry Armstrong has been doing the pitching for a Los Angeles softball team called the "Armstrong Dynamiters." . . . What was that Dizzy Dean muttered about a "Lemon Rickey" after he got that four-hitter out of his system the other day? . . . If you are still horsing for real long shots why don't you place a quid on "Feller and Hemsley and Brown and Todd" as the batteries for the opening game of the world series? . . . And before you laugh that one off, remember that Connie Mack pulled old Howard Ehmke out of the bull pen and sent him against the Cubs one day—and won.

Flying isn't sports, but you can't help but doff your new straw to that Corrigan guy. . . . His grand feat in flying the Atlantic in an old sewing machine has touched the hearts of the nation. . . . Judge Landis bought himself a new skimmer and went out to see the Cubs play . . . the park attendant didn't recognize the judge in his new finery and wouldn't let him in. . . .

A youngster named Earl Tolley is apt to drive Sam Snead, the pride of West Virginia, right off the front pages down there . . . Tolley is the pro at the swanky Greenbrier club at White Sulphur Springs and has all the earmarks of a comer. . . . And if all this happens, the irony would be that Tolley learned most of his golf watching Snead play.

Not many people up this way are fooled by the way Frank Guernsey of Rice is going to town in tennis. . . . Pros called the turn on him as far back as two years ago. . . . They said then the kid was going places and, well, he's gone. . . . Summer football tip: West Virginia may whale the tar out of Pitt in the opener and don't guffaw so loudly. . . . Niftiest football publicity book to hit this desk in a long while is the one just received from Texas Tech.

EMPLOYS FIVE NEW TEACHERS IN CITY SYSTEM

Board Also Asks Civil Service List of Eligibles for Attendance Officer.

The Mansfield board of education employed five new teachers for the city schools at a meeting yesterday afternoon and passed a resolution asking the Mansfield civil service commission to certify an applicant for appointment as schools attendance officer to replace Arthur H. Wood, who died several months ago.

A number of applications for the attendance officer post already have been submitted, Supt. W. L. Miller said, but the board is required to appoint only on civil service certification.

Miller recommended that the appointee be between 35 and 50 years old.

Two For High School.

Two of the instructors who were employed will teach in the automotive and electrical departments at Senior high school, one of them filling a post recently created by the board.

Employed for the jobs were Earle A. Weiner, Mansfield, and Robert O. McFarland, Lexington, both of whom have had experience in the automotive and electrical industries.

The other new teachers are: Miss Mary Elizabeth Gracy, of Cambridge, home economics in junior high school; Floyd B. Million, Mansfield, history at Senior high school, and Miss Frances M. Norton, Butler, elementary instructor.

Miss Gracy attended Muskingum college and Ohio State university, while Million is a graduate of Manchester college and attended the University of Virginia, and Miss Norton attended Ashland college.

At the same time the board recommended that Dr. J. H. Bristor, clerk, send letters of appreciation to Miss Kate S. Moore and J. Leo Hartmann, teachers in Senior high school who retired last month after long service.

Miss Moore has taught in the Mansfield schools for 28 years and Hartmann for 37 years.

Asks For List.

The board authorized Bristor to ask for civil service certification of applicants for two assistant janitor posts in the schools. Appointments are needed to fill the vacancies left by the retirement of Fred Stanlowski and Frank Finnerty, according to J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings.

Moke recommended the appointment of Charles Birmelin, former assistant janitor, to the place left vacant by Stanlowski's retirement, provided Birmelin receives civil service certification.

The Mansfield Library board was granted permission to establish a branch library in the basement of the Newman school, the first to be set up in an elementary building.

Supt. Miller said the library board had agreed to establish the branch as an experiment.

Urges Inventory Of Real Property As WPA Project

A real property inventory project designed to furnish employment for 30 white collar WPA workers for a period of four months will be presented to city and county officials and businessmen at a meeting with WPA officials at the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow.

The proposal will be outlined by H. B. Grubb, WPA supervisor of statistical and research projects.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who arranged the meeting, said the purpose of the project was to furnish work for unemployed white collar workers.

He said the results of the survey would be prepared into book form upon completion of the field work and would be on file in various public offices. It was explained that the survey would be of widespread interest in social work as it would give a complete report of home and business conditions in Mansfield.

CORRIGAN AND PREMIER VISIT

raise no difficulty because he landed here without credentials or permits, and assured him papers would be provided to enable him a safe return home.

'Stay As Long As You Like.'

"As long as you choose to stay in this country," De Valera said, "You shall be an honored guest of Eire."

Corrigan was still dressed in his battered leather flying coat and grey pants, badly in need of a pressing. He wore a necktie borrowed from American Minister John D. Cudahy and had a fresh shave and a general "wash-up." His hair was uncombed and he was hatless, still giving the impression of a rather grubby, bashful young man.

Corrigan breakfasted at the legation with Cudahy and the latter's secretary, and then quietly strolled through the legation grounds. During this walk, he told International News Service he had no definite plans for the future.

"I may stay for a day or so, or perhaps a little longer," he said. "But take it from me, I'm not flying back. I'll go by boat from Cobh or Galway."

Told of reports the United States commerce department had cancelled his experimental license and suspended his pilot's license because of his unsanctioned flight in a nine-year-old $900 battered plane, Corrigan said:

"That's too bad, but I expected it. I made a genuine mistake, and that's all there is to it.

"They were quite in order in forbidding an ocean flight on the grounds the plane was not fit. And since I told them I was going to fly to Los Angeles and have in fact flown the Atlantic without permission, it makes them look rather silly.

"But anyhow, I wasn't intending to fly back so it doesn't matter."

Turns Down Cash.

Corrigan displayed a surprising contempt for financial gain by turning down a number of offers to write his experiences and appear in the movies. He was not interested in payments for the story of his life, stage appearances or a cinema career.

After leaving De Valera's office, Corrigan motored to Baldonnel to make sure his creaking ship was still safe. He found it awaiting customs clearance and announced that if he was refused a permit to fly the plane to Cobh, he would have it crated for shipment home.

The flier did seem tempted, however, by alluring offers to place the ship on exhibition in London or at the Glasgow Empire exposition.

After the De Valera meeting, Corrigan attended a small luncheon party in his honor given by Minister Cudahy and attended by members of the legation staff and their wives. Throughout the day, hundreds of congratulatory cables and telegrams flowed in upon the flier, one of them from Henry Ford.

Corrigan Gets Bid From Movie Studio.

CULVER CITY, Calif.—(U.P.)—Douglas Corrigan got a movie offer today as a result of his daring New York to Dublin flight.

Hal Roach studios cabled Corrigan "Will you consider making test on your return here for important role with Brian Aherne in story written and directed by Norman McLeod, ex-war ace, which closely parallels your achievement?"

U. S. Blocks Any Move For Return Flight.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The Department of Commerce cancelled the experimental license of Douglas G. Corrigan today to prevent him attempting a westward flight across the Atlantic ocean.

They cabled Irish authorities, through state department channels, of their action against the intrepid aviator who confounded aviation experts here by his week-end trip to Europe.

Corrigan Goes on Air Again Tonight.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Douglas Corrigan will make enough money tonight to pay for his wrong way flight across the Atlantic to Dublin, believe it or not.

Tonight he'll be on the Robert Ripley believe-it-or-not radio broadcast.

Ripley said the shoestring flyer would be paid enough for the broadcast to reimburse him for the cost of his plane ($900), the cost of his flight ($69.40) and supply enough funds for him to return in first class style.

Furthermore, he'll broadcast on the same program again when he returns.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

THE GAMBLER

MY NEIGHBOR waved his hand toward his broad, even corn field and said, "That's as good a field as I ever planted. It ought to yield a hundred baskets to the acre. I knew it was good soil, for when I plowed it, it had holes all through, like bread, and it smelled like it had life in it.

"My wheat is the best I've raised in the last five years. There'll be no screenings. The grains are big and plump.

"The grass is extra good, too. Got two and a half tons from every acre . . . alsike knee high, mixed with just enough timothy to hold it up straight. Only two loads out o' that whole mow full got wet, an' it's packed clean up to the roof.

"My herd o' Guernseys is the best I've ever had . . . and those young shoats are a sight to look at, now ain't they?"

I looked at the farmer's grain and hay, his contented cattle and grazing hogs, and assented. It did me good to share in his delight, and to feel his spirits soar.

That afternoon the storm came. The rain and hail washed ditches in his corn field, and cut the tender, thrifty stalks to lifeless shreds. The wind tore the roof from off its rafter plate and ruined the well-made hay beneath. The shocks of wheat were scattered everywhere across the muddy fields. The woodlot of fine oak and sugar was uprooted or broken and twisted. The cattle sought shelter under two large willow trees. Here a bolt of lightning split one giant tree, and left eight of the herd dead upon the ground.

This farmer never worked a slot machine or played the stock market. . . . he didn't believe in gambling.

Approximately 25 members of the Bushnell school P. T. A. added their endorsement to the Mansfield board of education's proposed $550,000 school bond issue at a meeting last night at the school building.

The Bushnell organization was the third P. T. A. group to approve the bond issue. The West Fifth and Woodland organizations endorsed it last week.

Meetings to promote the building plan will be held at other schools in the city before the Aug. 9 election when the $550,000 bond issue will be submitted to voters.

Long Battle Ahead on Rail Pay Cut; Deadlock Seen

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—A long, drawn out battle was foreseen today as representatives of railway management and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, resuming conferences on a proposed 15 per cent wage cut involving approximately 900,000 workers, promised "no compromise."

Both sides indicated that the controversy probably would go through all the stages of the railway labor act before a settlement is reached.

The carriers' joint conference committee, representing the nation's 142 class 1 railroads, was to continue today presentation of arguments it began yesterday at a preliminary conference. President A. F. Whitney of the brotherhood said his organization probably would require four days to present its case against the proposed pay cut which would involve $250,000,000 annually.

As a result, it was indicated that a second conference scheduled to start tomorrow between the carriers and representatives of 18 other brotherhoods probably would be postponed. The other brotherhoods are members of the Railway Labor Executives association from which the trainmen split a year ago.

H. A. Enochs, chairman of the carriers' committee, reiterated at yesterday's conference the management's previous stand that railroad income could not support present wage levels. He cited President Roosevelt's message to congress setting forth needs of the carriers.

Whitney likewise promised "no compromise."

"The unions are prepared to fight this matter out," he said.

"Employes are entitled to receive a living wage even if the carriers can't pay a penny of interest on bonded indebtedness or dividends.

"Our men are already underpaid and we won't agree to any compromise."

Twenty-eight boys from Mansfield are at the camp now attending the two-week period which opened Sunday, July 10. Chapman is one of the camp leaders and will remain at camp until it closes.

GIVES RULING ON ABSENT VOTERS

Kennedy Tells Richland Board Precinct Officials Must Agree on Identification.

Richland county board of election officials were told today that a majority of precinct judges and clerks must agree on the identification of voters of absent ballots before the ballot can be removed from its envelope and tabulated after an election.

The ruling was issued by Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, who recently launched a drive against irregularities in the voting of absent and sick and disabled voters' ballots.

Kennedy said the state law requires that the signature of the voter on the ballot identification envelope agree with the signature on the registration card.

When election supplies are delivered to the precinct booths, they must include a complete list of all electors who have obtained absent voters ballots, whether the ballot has been marked and returned or not, Kennedy said.

Walter Underwood, deputy clerk of the election board, said 22 applications for absent voters ballots for the Aug. 9 election had been received today. The number is no larger than usual, he added, despite apparent wide-spread interest in the relief and school bond issues in Mansfield.

Sick and disabled voters ballots may be voted from July 25 to Aug. 6, Underwood said.

ORDINANCE NO. 38-122

By Mr. Hunter:

To construct storm water sewers in the City of Mansfield, Ohio, and to authorize the issuance of bonds for the payment of the City's share of the cost thereof.

Whereas, Council has requested the City Auditor to issue a certificate as to the estimated life of the improvement proposed to be constructed from the proceeds of the bonds hereinafter referred to and the City Auditor has certified to this council the maximum maturity of such bonds as 25 years.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MANSFIELD, STATE OF OHIO:

Section 1. That the Director of Public Service be and he hereby is authorized to proceed with the construction of storm water sewers in accordance with plans and specifications on file in said office on the following named streets:

Coleman Road, Chilton Avenue, Wise Avenue, West Third Street, Alley between Glenwood Boulevard and Stewart Avenue, Cleveland Avenue and Mason Avenue, South Park Street and South Diamond Street, Hemlock Alley, St. Clair and McPherson, Crescent Road and Lexington Avenue, Glessner Avenue and Carpenter Road, Johns Avenue and Bowman Street, Crescent and Shepard Road through to Lexington Avenue, Park Avenue West at B. & O. Railroad.

Section 2. That the Director of Public Service is hereby authorized and directed to advertise for bids and enter into a contract with the lowest and best bidder for such materials as may be used on the said project.

Section 3. That it is deemed necessary to issue bonds in the principal sum of $9000.00 in order to provide funds for the purpose of constructing such storm water sewers, and to provide funds for the payment of not to exceed one year's interest on said bonds, that such bonds shall be issued in one lot and that anticipatory notes shall not be issued in anticipation of the issuance of such bonds.

Section 4. That bonds of the City of Mansfield, Ohio, shall be issued in the principal sum of $9000.00 for the purpose aforesaid, five (5) of said bonds shall be in the denomination of $800.00 each, and said bonds shall be numbered from one (1) to ten (10) inclusive, and said bonds shall be dated the 1st of August, 1938, and shall bear interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable semi-annually on the 1st day of April and October in each year until the principal sum is paid. The first interest date shall be April 1st, 1939, provided however, that if said bonds are sold bearing a different rate of interest than hereinbefore specified, said bonds shall bear such rate of interest as may be provided for in the resolution of Council approving the award thereof. Said bonds shall mature as follows: One bond of $1000.00 and one bond of $800.00 on October 1st, in each of the years from 1939 to 1943 both inclusive, which maturities are hereby determined to be substantially equal, annual payments. The principal and interest of all said bonds shall be payable at the office of the City Treasurer in said City of Mansfield, Ohio.

Section 5. That said bonds shall express on their face the purpose for which they are issued, that they are issued in pursuance of this ordinance and shall be signed by the Mayor and Auditor and sealed with the corporate seal of said city. The interest coupons attached to said bonds shall bear the facsimile signature of the City Auditor.

Section 6. That for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of bonds promptly when and as the same falls due, and also to provide a fund sufficient to discharge the said serial bonds at maturity there shall be and is hereby levied on all the taxable property in said City of Mansfield, Ohio, in addition to all other taxes a direct tax annually during the period said bonds are to run, in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay interest upon said bonds as and when the same fall due, and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said serial bonds at maturity, which tax shall not be less than the interest and Sinking Fund tax required by Section 11 of Article 12 of the Constitution.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied, and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levies hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund which, together with all interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said bonds when and as the same fall due.

Section 7. All the faith, revenue and credit of the City of Mansfield, Ohio, are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of both principal and interest of the bonds hereinbefore described in accordance with the laws of the State of Ohio.

Section 8. That said bonds shall be first offered at par and accrued interest to the trustees of the Sinking Fund in their official capacity and if said trustees refuse to take any or all of said bonds, then said bonds not so taken shall be advertised for public sale and sold in the manner provided by law under the direction of the Finance Committee and the Auditor, but not for less than their par value and accrued interest. The bond sale advertisement shall state that anyone desiring to do so may present a bid or bids for such bonds, based upon their bearing a different rate of interest than hereinbefore fixed, provided however, that where a fractional interest rate is bid such fraction shall be one-quarter of one per cent (¼ of 1%) or multiple thereof. The amount of the bond or certified check to accompany bids shall be $90.00. The proceeds from the sale of said bonds except the premium and accrued interested thereon and the amount of said bonds issued for interest shall be used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose. The premium and accrued interest received from such sale and the amount of said bonds issued for interest shall be transferred to the Sinking Fund to be applied in the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds in the manner provided by law.

Section 9. The City Auditor is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

Section 10. This ordinance shall take effect and be in full force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed: July 5, 1938.
Signed: K. P. TROLL,
President of Council.
Approved: C. M. HUNTER,

MARKET BOOMS AS PRICES HIT RECORD HIGHS

Stocks Up 1 to More Than 3 Points as Ticker's Swamped by Buying Wave.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market today soared 1 to more than 3 points to new highs for the year, as the high-speed ticker was swamped by a sustained wave of buying from the opening bell.

An accumulation of overnight buying orders brought one of the most active first hours since the rise began on June 20. Blocks of stock running to 8,000 shares changed hands, and the ticker was forced 6 minutes behind, necessitating use of the stock exchange's "flash" system of prices from the floor. The tape again ran 3 minutes late in the second hour.

Volume in the first hour amounted to 870,000 shares, or a full-day rate of better than 4,000,000 shares.

Cheerful business news, particularly on the steel industry, continued the chief bullish stimulant. Pittsburgh reported an additional increase in operations since the start of the week, following yesterday's estimate for a general steel industry rate at the best level since last November.

Building material demand was said to be increasing, with the price structure firm. Washington dispatches indicated a belief there of an earlier revival of the capital goods market.

CHANGES HOURS

Fendrick Eliminates Evening Program at Prospect.

A change in hours for supervised play at Prospect park was made today by Al Fendrick, city playground director.

The park will be open every day but Saturday and Sunday between the hours of 10 and 12 a. m., and 1 and 5 p. m., Fendrick said. Since the playground season opened four weeks ago the park had been one of four open daily between 1 and 5, and 6 and 8 p. m. No more evening hours will be held.

The change was made because of the interference of playground activities with kittenball games nealy every evening of the week Fendrick said.

If the new hours work out satisfactorily at Prospect, Fendrick plans to adopt them for the other ten playgrounds. At present supervised play is conducted at Liberty, Johns and North Lake parks between 1 and 5, and 6 and 8 p. m., and at the other eight grounds between 9 and 12 a. m., and 1 and 4 p. m.

COURT ADDS FINE

Driver Assessed $150, Costs After License's Revoked.

Six hours after Kenneth Krinkilton, R. D. 1, Mansfield, had his operator's permit revoked for one year by municipal court yesterday on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, he was fined $150 and costs.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, who had deferred sentence yesterday morning pending an estimate on the damages to the other car involved in an accident, suspended $50 of the fine on condition that Krinkilton pay $20 damages to D. A. Secrist, R. D. 2, Bellville, whose car he allegedly sideswiped on route 13, three miles south of Mansfield.

Krinkilton was released on a $5,000 appearance bond pending payment of the fine. He was arrested Saturday by state highway patrolmen after Secrist swore out the warrant on the driving charge.

SCHOOLS ASK TAX ADVANCE

$201 Left in General Fund, Board Authorizes Clerk to Draw $26,700.

With the Mansfield schools' general fund reduced to $201, the board of education yesterday authorized Dr. J. H. Bristor, clerk, to draw $26,700 as an advance against the June collection of real estate and special assessment taxes.

The city schools, which already have borrowed $10,000 against the current tax collection, will receive $20,000 for their general fund and $6,700 for bond retirement in the advance, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said.

He estimated that the schools' total share of the second half taxes for operating expenses would be $130,000, but the remainder of it will not be available until the books close the third week in August. Regular distribution of the tax receipts will not be made until September.

Bristor said $18,000 of the $20,000 general fund advance would be needed to pay employes' salaries in two weeks.

The board authorized Bristor to ask for bids on the transportation of pupils to school next year. Transportation of handicapped children to city schools during the past year cost $3,473. Pupils are transported under a contract awarded to a taxicab company.

AND WHY NOT 'CORRIGAN DAY?'

Bold Airman's 'Mistake' Hop Stirs Up Enthusiasm of City's Sons of Erin.

what he thinks of a Corrigan, and I'm telling you that it took brains and courage, with a bit of wild Irish audacity. I think he set his plane just where he had headed for—but more power to him if he can get away with his story of a "mistake."

T. J. Clary, Yuncker Brothers—God is good to the Irish and none knew it better than young Corrigan when he set out for Dublin. He's a credit to the Irish.

Atty. Francis O'Brien, Richland Trust building—It was a typical Irish stunt—impetuous, impulsive, but canny enough to have his own way. Only an Irishman would have thought of getting around the refusal of authorities to permit him to make the trip in just that manner.

Patrick H. Downs, 114 West First street—No one but an Irishman would have accepted such odds. It was a great flight, combining daredeviltry and courage—and when a "bigger and better" flight is made, you can bet it'll be an Irishman making it.

Atty. John C. O'Donnell, Walpark building—Corrigan is a smart flier, level-headed and dependable, and I think he knew exactly what he was doing when he nosed his little plane out over the Atlantic.

M. B. Lambert, Westinghouse—I'll bet that wild Irishman laughed all the way over at the little joke he was pulling on the authorities who had refused him permission to make the flight last year. But whether it was impulsive or not, it was a great stunt.

Atty. Thomas McDermott, Walpark building—The story of Corrigan's flight is the most amazing and interesting piece of news in years; it's caught the imagination of the world. But that Irishman isn't fooling anyone with his story of flying the Atlantic by mistake.

Richard E. Kelley, Westinghouse—It was a typical Irish stunt—no one but an Irishman would have thought of it. And I think he's smart enough to capitalize on it, now that he's done it.

Fatrick Cusic, 169 Westwood avenue—Irish or no Irish, I think it was a nutty stunt. The odds against him were as great as a ticket on the Irish sweepstakes, and it was just the luck of the Irish that he's alive today.

P. S. Carroll, clerk of county commissioners—"It was a remarkable feat, but the angels must have been flirting with him all the way. An Irishman always heads for Ireland; that green little isle attracts them all."

Nellie M. Carr, deputy county auditor—"It was a grand feat. But I think Corrigan knew what he was doing when he headed for Ireland. Maybe it's the smell of the soil that instinctively brings them back."

GEN. JOHNSON:

Andrews best man to run Wage-hour set-up; a bit of praise for New Deal

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.: Having had a somewhat similar job hung around my neck, like the dead albatross which drove the ancient mariner dotty, my heart goes out to Elmer Andrews, who has just been appointed as administrator of the new wage-and-hours law. It is a hard assignment. He will be damned if he does and damned if he doesn't.

Yet, as has happened so frequently in this administration, without sufficient acknowledgment, this was a perfect appointment.

Thomas Jefferson said something to the effect that it is easy to put on paper the outline of a liberal plan of democratic government, but almost impossible to find the men to fit the places provided in the blueprints.

Andrews was a happy choice. He knows this problem, from his actual experience, better than anybody I know. He understands as well the difficulties of employers as he does the perplexities of workers. He is courageous and fair. This will be no National Labor Relations board administration. People who had apprehensions about a new, hot-eyed zealot harrying the capitalist system may calm their fears and dry their tears. The new administrator is a professional public servant of the British type, with an ample background of practical experience.

* * *

While there are blatant exceptions, many of Mr. Roosevelt's appointees display this excellence. There is much to rail at about Harold Ickes. To call him "Honest Harold" is a sort of an affront to him. But the fact remains that he guards that great repository of potential graft like a bulldog. It is too much personal power to be able to say what is a fair price for an existing privately owned public utility before you ruin it. But I have a kind of hunch that Harold is going to astonish his critics by being simply practical and decent.

We may not approve the policies Harry Hopkins was appointed to effect. I don't. Furthermore, I know, from personal experience, that he has perhaps the barmiest staff ever assembled in Washington.

* * *

But, as a dispenser of more billions than any man in history, I have yet to hear a responsible charge of monkey-business Harry's unfortunate excursion into Iowa politics was clearly amateurish innocence. His mind is keen, his judgment generally good, and his heart is honest.

Nobody would attempt to review the administration of our foreign relations by Cordell Hull with anything but praise. The same thing is true of Jesse Jones and Jack Fahey.

Looking back over our history —the terrible ineptitude of the conduct of the war among the states and the graft and patronage-ridden administrations of Grant, McKinley and Harding, compared with the civic honesty of both the Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt administrations, it is impossible not to give the devil (if you think so) his due—and concede that there has been morality in appointments and administration.

Andrew's nomination has no political significance whatever. It was solely on merit, and his administration will be correspondingly excellent.

Jap Bomb Raids Menace American Mission

500 KILLED AT HANKOW DURING DEATH SHOWER

Wall of U. S. School Damaged by Explosives; Fear 1,000 Dead or Injured.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI — Students at the American Catholic Girls' school in Hankow narrowly escaped injury or death today in a devastating Japanese air raid.

Twenty-seven planes, operating in squadrons of nine each, dropped more than 150 bombs in one of the biggest raids of the war on the so-called Wuhun district, comprising the cities of Wuchang, Hanyang and Hankow.

A semi-official Chinese estimate said there were 1,100 casualties from the bombing, including 500 killed in Hankow. More than 60 civilians were killed by bombs which struck the sixth municipal primary school in Wuchang.

Aimed at Airfields.

The attacks were directed against airfields in the tri-city area and followed yesterday's on Nanchang which Japanese authorities claimed was "the most daring attack in the annals of war aviation."

Of the bombs showered on Hankow, the Chinese provisional capital from where the government was expected to move shortly, one struck the wall of the compound around the American Catholic Girls' school. Part of the wall was demolished and pieces of debris and fragments of shrapnel were scattered about a wide erea. The school staff and students were indoors.

Another bomb fell within 50 feet of Feng Yu-Hsiang, China's "Christian General," as he darted along a street to a place of safety. He is a member of the Chinese government's board of strategy and a veteran campaigner.

Foreign observers believed the raid retaliated for recent Chinese bombings which were chiefly responsible for holding up the Japanese advance up the Yangtse valley toward Hankow. For a week the Japanese have been held up outside Kiukiang, 135 miles below Hankow.

Three huge fires broke out in Hanyang, close to the arsenal.

Nine raiding planes dropped over 50 bombs on the central part of Wuchang.

Up and Down THE STREET

Bees, lightning bugs and various other insects are falling victims to the 400 Japanese beetle traps in Mansfield, but the city is safe from the beetles if the traps are doing their duty, according to Edgar Stahl, Bellville, who makes the rounds of the federal bug traps every day. Only two beetles have been captured in the city to date, Stahl says. Steps are taken by the federal government to eradicate the pests in areas where they are found in large numbers.

Alvin M. Mock, city designing engineer, is just about convinced that the depression is over—and as proof he displayed today a letter from a Cleveland contracting firm which had received plans and specifications when the city advertised for the construction of the Woodland tank tower. It read: "We regret to advise that we have so much work on hand we cannot bid on the construction of the water tower."

Patrolman C. B. Teiben of the Mansfield State Highway Patrol station was back on desk duty at patrol headquarters today but not because he wanted to be. He got the job as the result of a fractured left arm suffered last week in a motorcycle accident while returning from Marietta where he was on duty with 14 other state patrolmen. The accident, according to Teiben, was the first he had on a motorcycle since learning to ride these two-wheeled vehicles eight years ago.

A woman motorist who sent a rush call to a garage yesterday afternoon from the vicinity of the Westinghouse plant, can sympathize now with the heroine of a thriller movie. She had driven her automobile half-way across the Pennsylvania tracks on East Fifth street when a rear wheel came off and went rolling down the tracks. Garagemen hurriedly removed the damaged car from the tracks and found that the rear axle had snapped, releasing the wheel. The driver is still thankful that it wasn't train time.

GRAND JURY PANEL LEGAL, AIDS CLAIM

11 to Enter Pleas Today in Charges Returned by Fund-Raising Probers.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Nine of the 11 state officials indicted last week on charges of soliciting contributions to Governor Davey's campaign fund from state civil service employes pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Henry L. Scarlett today.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Aids of Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy fought back today at attempts to nullify indictments involving 18 persons accused in a special grand jury's investigation of political campaign fund-raising.

Counsel for seven of the accused contended that the jury was impanelled last Nov. 22 at Gov. Martin L. Davey's direction to inquire into the parole system only, and had no authority to go into the matter of campaign contributions.

11 Plead Today.

Will P. Stephenson and Frederic A. Cuff, assistant attorneys general, who handled the fund-raising investigation, said that the jury—although never dismissed—had no legal connection with the grand jury which conducted the parole probe.

Eleven persons named in indictments handed up last week were to be arraigned today before Common Pleas Judge Henry L. Scarlett.

They were Jesse Gilbert, assistant to the state liquor director; Miss Gertrude Fortune, state superintendent of charities; Edgar Brill, chief of the division of factory and building inspection; William Alexander, state liquor store supervisor; Milton P. Hain, assistant liquor store supervisor; Frank C. Hahn, liquor department comptroller; Charles H. Hubbell, auditor- accountant in the unemployment compensation commission; Nora Halter of the conservation division; Louis Lieb of the state employment service; J. R. Burkey, chief engineer of the bureau of bridges in the highway department, and Arnold F. Reiher, department of industrial relations statistician.

Stephenson and Cuff said, however, that despite the similarity of the membership, the present jury was a new one, convened independently upon authority of Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

By DAN DE LUCE
(Stand-in for Robbin Coons)

HOLLYWOOD—Edward G. Robinson goes back to gangland for the sake of science. He makes a big haul.

Not since Robert Montgomery's "Night Must Fall" made the list of 10-best last year has Hollywood produced a socko crime movie like Robinson's "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse."

It's psychological—the study of a Park avenue physician who turns burglar so he can do medical research in the underworld. But the camera doesn't fuss with long words. It focuses on a rogues' gallery of warped characters and their adventures with the amazing doctor.

A vein of macabre comedy, more plausible than in Robinson's previous "A Slight Case of Murder," crops up continually. It ends in a hysterical scene when the doctor's sanity is questioned by a befuddled juror at his trial for murder.

Robinson gets excellent support from his police and crookdom pals. Claire Trevor is the blonde "fence." Donald Crisp is a different kind of detective. Humphrey Bogart is the suspicious big shot of the crime ring wherein the doctor experiments on such quaint human guinea pigs as Maxie Rosenbloom and Allen Jenkins.

Swiftly-paced. Anatole Litvak's direction wins a gold megaphone. He's the foreign importation who married Miriam Hopkins and did "Tovarich."

When Shirley Temple bursts into tears a minute after she sings "Be Optumistic," it strikes a lugubrious keynote for her new picture, "Little Miss Broadway."

Eight-year-old Goldilocks is charming as ever when she smiles, dances tip-tap in her baby shoes and whispers lyrics a little off key. But please, Mr. Zanuck, don't make her cry so much.

"Little Miss Broadway" depends more on Shirley's tears than its creaky plot to make everything seem sensible. She is an orphan adopted by Edward Ellis, manager of a hotel hangout for jobless vaudevillians. A rich old ogress, Edna Mae Oliver, wants to raze the hotel and send Shirley back to the orphanage. Her nephew, George Murphy, helps Shirley melt Edna Mae's heart.

* * *

When the story's forgotten, the picture shines. Two droll faces, Jimmy Durante and El Brendel, mimic again. Horse-visaged Donald Meek is a close rival. George Murphy, with Shirley as a light-footed partner, never danced better.

There are six numbers by Walter Bullock and Harold Spina, the liveliest being 'Swing Me an Old-Fashioned Song." Shirley does.

"Little Miss Broadway" is better vaudeville than "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," but it's not in the same class with "Heidi."

OK'S INCREASE IN 1939 BUDGET

Shelby Council Approves Tentative Figures Asking for Hike of $7,105.

SHELBY — City council approved a tentative budget for the general operating expenses of the city government for 1939 which calls for approximately $7,015 more than for 1938, at last night's meeting.

Set up in the budget is approximately $16,000 for the general bond retirement fund, Bert Fix, director of finance, stated. Preliminary legislation was passed on the budget earlier this month by council but at that time it had not been read. Fix said. No changes were made at its reading last night.

The increase this year is due to the heavy burden of poor relief which was increased from $8,000 in 1938 to $12,000 for 1939, Fix explained.

Other business at the session included the first reading of an ordinance giving the Shelby Community Street Fair permission to use Main street from Second street to Church street on Sept. 7, 8, 9 and 10.

The Shelby Better Business club asked council for permission to declare a Shelby National Junior Soap Box derby for 1939 for all cities under a population of 10,000. The matter was held over until the next council meeting.

A resolution asking the county commissioners to include Shelby's streets, sidewalks and other projects in the county-wide road, street and bridge program under WPA, was passed.

Council adjourned without discussing the current gas rate problem.

MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS AT FOUR SCHOOLS NEARING COMPLETION

Major improvements are being made in four city schools during the summer, J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings told the board of education at its meeting yesterday afternoon.

Some work is being done in other schools with all the repairing scheduled to be finished before the opening of school in September.

At Senior high school a new press box is being erected at the athletic field and modern lighting equipment installed on the auditorium stage.

The press box is being erected on the steel bleachers at the west side of the field, while a refreshment stand will be built under the bleachers, Moke said. The west entrance to the field will be reconstructed to conform to the other changes, he added.

Authorized last month, the lighting improvements in the auditorium will include installation of new overhead and footlights to eliminate the blinding effect the old lights cause on the stage. The auditorium equipment will cost approximately $600.

Major improvements are nearing completion at the John Simpson, Hedges and Newman buildings, Moke reported.

Workmen are repairing plaster in the Senior high, Newman and Hedges buildings, and classroom walls and ceilings are being painted in the Newman building.

Fire brick linings in the boilers at Senior high and John Simpson Junior high schools will be replaced before the opening of school, and boiler stokers at both schools will be repaired.

The interior of the Hedges and Newman buildings will be washed, while damaged roofs on all the buildings will be put in shape by September.

He was arrested by police who testified that the youth was driving 55 miles an hour on South Diamond street last night.

Lawrence Chromister, 19, of R. D. 1, Lucas, was fined $10 and costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to register a motor vehicle.

Corporal Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol, who arrested the youth on route 39, south of Lucas last night said the car had no license plates.

WILL CONTEST SUIT REVEALS WOMAN POSED AS MAN 15 YEARS

(By International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—A fifteen-year masquerade as a man, by a woman who died last March and was survived by a "widow," was revealed today in the contest of the deceased's will by two Connecticut relatives.

The suit alleged that Marshal W. Hoyt, 45, of Natick, who lived for more than 10 years as the slender, dapper husband of Mrs. Grace Himebaugh Hoyt, was actually a woman, born Georgianna W. Wilson, native of Ossining, N. Y.

The will, pencilled on a single sheet of paper, dated March 1, bequeathed "Hoyt's" entire estate to "my wife."

Contestants, Eugene E. Wackenhuth, East Portchester, Conn., a niece, and J. Gilbert Wilson, Stamford, Conn., a nephew, alleged their aunt left no husband and they claimed the estate as nearest of kin.

"Mrs. Hoyt" was reported vacationing somewhere in Maine. Her three children, George, Claire and Walter Melvin Himebaugh, had never known their "stepfather" was a woman.

Frederick A. Gibbs, the undertaker who arranged the funeral of "Mr. Hoyt" said he made out the customary return required by law stating the true facts of the case and filing it with the town clerk. Natick Police Chief Thomas Evans declared it was a "peculiar case" and he would inquire into why the alleged masquerade was never reported.

GIVE-AND-TAKE HELPS SWEDEN SOLVE PROBLEM

Country Steers Middle Course in Labor Controversies and Wins Success.

(Editor's Note: Sweden and Great Britain have struck upon formulas for the settlement of industrial disputes that are the envy of other industrial nations. President Roosevelt has sent a commission abroad to report on how the Swedish and British systems differ from our own.

Webb Miller, European manager of the United Press and an experienced reporter of European trends, is making a first-hand survey of conditions in Sweden and Great Britain and begins today a series of dispatches intended to answer many popular questions about industrial relations in those countries.)

By WEBB MILLER

STOCKHOLM, July 18—The secret of Sweden's famous "middle way" of solving labor disputes, a formula that is the envy of all industrial nations today, lies in a spirit of "give and take" that breathes life into the dead letter of the law.

The commission which President Roosevelt has appointed to study the Swedish system will search in vain through lawbooks for the answer to why this nation has so few labor disputes and virtually no violence.

The answer is not written in lawbooks, but in the minds and hearts of the Swedes, a patient, law-abiding people who will go to almost any end to avoid the use of force.

That is why most students doubt that the Swedish system could be applied in other nations, including the United States, where the inhabitants lack the peculiar temperament and outlook of the Swedes.

It was this respect for law and the orderly processes of government that struck me most forcibly when I came here to interview the country's leaders and find out first-hand the secret of Sweden's industrial peace.

For instance, there is an ordinance against the excessive blowing of automobile horns. I have not heard an automobile horn since I have been here. That attitude does much to explain the success of the Swedish system.

Here is a system that has been developing for two decades. Progress toward complete industrial peace has been rapid. In 1930 there were 261 disputes which reached the stage of strikes or lockouts. By 1936 the number had dropped to 60 and still is dropping.

The framework on which Sweden has built its system is simple:

THERE is a statutory eight-hour day for industrial workers.

THERE ARE seven conciliators scattered throughout Sweden whose duty is to encourage conciliation and make their services available in all disputes. The conciliators have no power to prevent strikes or lockouts.

A LABOR COURT consisting of two representatives of capital, two of labor and three neutrals is appointed by the crown to enforce collective bargaining agreements once they have been made The court can fine a union, a union member or an employer if it finds that an agreement has been violated To that extent the law is bi-lateral. The court works with great speed, often hearing a case and rendering a verdict in the same day.

No Minimum Pay Law.

But much more important than the "skeleton" of laws is the spirit between capital and labor.

Broadly, it is this: Capital recognizes the right of laborers to organize for the purpose of obtaining better working conditions and wages; labor, in turn, recognizes the right of capital to earn a fair profit.

There is no minimum wage law in Sweden, and wages in different industries vary widely. The general principle seems to be that an industrialist will pay as high wages as he can and still obtain a fair profit. Generally speaking, both sides stand ready at all times to negotiate on the issue of what is a fair wage and a fair profit.

But if it comes down to a fight between capital and labor—and it sometimes does—both sides are resourceful and well equipped Labor in Sweden is a compact group, unweakened by such schisms as occurred in America when the CIO and the A. F. of L. parted company.

The Swedish Confederation of Trade Unions, made up of 42 federations, has a membership of 840,000. The total number of workers belonging to unions outside the confederation is only 60,000.

The confederation has a reserve or "fighting fund" of 12,000,000 kroner (about $3,000,000) to distribute to its members in event of a strike. Between 1899 and 1935 the confederation paid out $4,000,000 to carry on during strikes and labor disputes.

But the employers are equally well organized. Five thousand of them have formed the Swedish employers' federation, a sort of "union of capitalists."

Their weapon, in event of industrial strife, is the lockout. Members pledge that they will join any lockout ordered by the employers' federation and that they will not enter into any collective agreements with workers unless the federation approves it.

At present the federation has a "war chest" of about $6,000,000 Any employer who violates the rules of the federation can be fined a maximum of $50 for each person in his employ.

On the other hand, if he is ordered to join a lockout, he receives benefits from the federation—25 cents a day for each employe for the first month and 50 cents a day for each person in his employ for the second month.

The federation refuses to aid one of its members, however, unless it is convinced his position is reasonable. It aims never to resort to lockouts unless there is sound economic justification for them.

Most experts agree that it is the realization that there is a community of interest between capital and labor that keeps the peace As a president of the Swedish employers' federation once said: "We are both sitting on the same limb and if either saws it off we will both fall"

TOMORROW: What a great Swedish industrialist thinks about Sweden's industrial system).

LOVE IN DANGER

By KATHRYN BEMIS

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER VIII

A moonlight excursion down the Mumford river—with Frank on board subjected to Stella's wiles? And how the dark, stunning-looking Stella could use them! Ray was numb with apprehension.

"It's settled then?" continued Stella. "Tell Hal to get you to the dock by eight. We'll dine on board. Even if the food is nothing to brag about, it'll be a big night. Toodle-oo, darling!"

Ray slammed the receiver into its cradle with a bang. So she had thought herself in love with Frank Armstrong! Jump! She would take extreme pleasure tonight in proving to him, and incidentally to herself, that they were as far as Jupiter and the Sun. She would show him that a man couldn't do the things he was doing. He couldn't do them and retain a vestige of her respect, much less her—love.

She would go on the trip and keep her eyes open and her senses alert. Frank Armstrong would be reasonably certain that Stella's pearls would be returned to her by tonight. She was a venturesome girl. She might be just foolish enough to wear them because they set off her midnight hair and olive complexion so beautifully. If necessary to acquire pearls, the disappearance of a passenger after the crowd had had enough champagne wouldn't cause too great a ripple of suspicion. Robbery and murder might easily ride the waves with the Lily Bell this evening.

Yes, she would be vigilant and, if necessary, disobey Mr. Roper's orders by reporting directly to him in the morning It was certain that a silly, romantic frame of mind would never do for a business woman like herself. Anyway, with Hal around, only a very persistent man could wedge into place beside her. And there wouldn't be too much opportunity for an escort of Stella to break away in another direction. So it would be a business evening for an employe of the Union Detective Agency and one undoubtedly packed with thrills.

The Lily Bell chugged its way along the Mumford river that night, its lights piercing the ragged shoreline, making eerie, grotesque figures of familiar things like scrub oak, tall pines, and scraggy underbrush. The moon rose in the sky like a huge plaque of frosted silver, glistening, hanging there in silent magnificence.

The boat was scheduled to reach Milltown around midnight where a chartered bus waited to return the gay party of Heddie White's friends to Mumford in less than half the time the Lily Bell could take them down the river. For once, speed was willingly dispensed with by this sprightly young crowd so imbued with the glad irresponsibility of living. The four-piece local orchestra played raggedly through an unsavory dinner, but enough champagne was served to disguise partially the quality of the food. The Lily Bell, ordinarily operated for excursionists with luncheon baskets, never had catered to the upper crust of society such as it carried tonight.

The bare board walls of the saloon, the dingy oil lanterns swinging from its smoky rafters, were incongruous setting for the smartly sport-clothed crowd that lent it glamour. They all had been on many a trip aboard luxurious yachts, on the most elegantly appointed ocean liners, but this party was a refreshingly new type. It was actual slumming and filled with surprises at every turn. The crowd voted Heddie terribly clever to have conceived it.

The orchestra suddenly broke into "I'm Headin' for Home" and Hal said to Ray who was sitting beside him, "We can't feed this tune to the fishes. Come on, sweetheart, let's dance."

* * *

He shoved back his cup of very bad coffee and got to his feet weaving. Ray thought disgustedly, "He's already far from sober and the evening's still young. A fine escort Stella picked for me!"

She glanced furtively down the long table to Frank Armstrong sitting next to Stella, who was becomingly outfitted in a bottle-green knitted frock with matching beret. Naturally, she was not wearing pearls with informal clothes. It sent a wave of relief through Ray. There were no pearls, thank heaven, on any of the girls

Frank had seemed unusually gay all evening, and it was plain to be seen that he and Stella were getting on famously together. If he now noticed Ray's scrutiny, he gave no sign, unless his broader grin at Stella meant he was showing Ray that his actions of last night shouldn't be taken seriously.

Ray set her lips tightly, rose, gave her rust sweater a savage downward yank, and danced down the room with the short wiry Hal.

But the splintered rough planks of the saloon were not for feet accustomed to sliding easily over waxed, polished floors. After a few minutes of real exertion, Hal paused abruptly. He laughed into Ray's sober face. Playfully, he reached out and pulled a golden curl over her ear.

"Honey-child," he said, his glassy eyes narrowing as he surveyed her, "what's on your mind? Out with it!"

She paled, started back to the table, but he caught her sleeve. "Wait!" he commanded, with drunken persistence. "There's something I must tell you!"

She immediately changed her mind about leaving him. Whatever any one had to tell her just now might be tremendously important. Willingly enough, she followed him up on deck.

Arms on the railing, they stood gazing across the black expanse of wide calm river. The sound of water, lapping and swishing against the old boat's side, was lulling to the senses, filling the moment with the sweetly gentle urge of plaintive romance. The smell of tar, rotting wood and fish, mingled with the gentle south breeze. Ray felt almost as if she had been transplanted to a foreign country. The greasy-looking waiters back in the saloon, the tobacco-stained whiskers of the genial-faced old captain peering curiously at them from time to time, lent vivid color to imagination. Truly, they might be prisoners on a pirate ship laden with gold and bound for the distant south seas.

Ray was brought back to normalcy by Hal's hand over hers.

He said bluntly, "Ray—why don't we get married? Why not tonight? We could elope."

She wheeled to him in startled dismay. "But why elope? There's only one barrier to our marriage—my refusal to marry you. Why do you bring it up now? I came out here because you had something to tell me. If that's all it is—"

She snatched away her hand.

He leaned both elbows on the rail, cupped his face in short, unsteady fingers. For a few minutes he seemed moodily intent upon the moon drenched river winding along its mysterious rocks and coves.

"First—I had to try getting in a word for myself, Ray. I can see it's no use—maybe later."

His tone sounded menacing. A shiver ran through Ray's slight figure. She was indignant at herself for having come on deck with him.

Then he blurted out, "What would you say if I told you Frank Armstrong was to blame for all the lights going off the night of Stella's party?"

"Oh, no!" was her agitated response. "He couldn't—he—"

"He could and was! He went to the basement and turned off all the switches. Morgan wondered what he was up to, followed him downstairs, and saw him do it. I've tipped Morgan plenty whenever I've been at the Cliftons—so I'm fairly close to him. He asked me what he'd better do. He was all for phoning the police—but I persuaded him not to."

"Police!" Ray quavered weakly. Then she remembered the way Frank had disappeared that night and how rude she had thought he was to leave her. There was a prayer in her heart. What had he been up to? And—he had given Stella's pearls to her that night, saying he had found them in a wash bowl! Oh—what a story!

* * *

A whiff of cigaret smoke awoke Ray to another's presence. Clinton Hoover had joined them and she could ask Hal nothing further for the present.

"Have I barged into a private twosome—or is it open for additions?" Clinton asked apologetically.

Ray's light laugh had a sharp edge. She said nervously, "You're—you're quite welcome."

She was barely conscious of what she had said. "Grand party, isn't it?" she added, hoping to recover from her agitation.

"Perhaps," he conceded grudgingly. "At any rate, it's normal so far. But from now on—it's purely a matter of speculation."

"What on earth's the matter, Clinton?" Ray asked, turning startled eyes on him. "You're usually so party-minded. What's happened?

"It's actually not my affair. I was only wondering why you girls don't take warning from what happened to old Anna Cook—and stop parading pearls. It's giving me the...the creeps."

"Don't tell us any girl is rash enough to do that tonight," put in Hal. "You've met up with an oyster."

"Stop being funny!" snapped Ray, shuddering.

"I wish I had seen the pearls in an oyster," said Clinton unsteadily. "But no such luck. I just saw Stella drop a whole string of pearls into Frank Armstrong's coat pocket. Now what do you make of that?"

A word to the graduates: Big things are not accomplished by those who neglect the little things.

As defined by Robert Quillen: "Charm is the mysterious something which enables you to convince people when they know you are wrong."

P. T. Barnum, the great showman, once estimated the birth rate of suckers at one a minute—and politicians seem to assume that all of them reach voting age.

Traffic Deaths, City and County.

RICHLAND COUNTY has had 13 traffic fatalities so far this year. Of this total four of the accidents, causing four deaths, occurred inside of Mansfield's city limits. Of these, three were Mansfield residents and two were killed at railway grade crossings.

Five of those who died from injuries received in traffic accidents in Richland county, outside Mansfield, were non-residents of this county who were motoring through. Four of these died as a result of the three-car crash on the Ashland road July 1.

An analysis of each of the accidents indicates that some element of carelessness was a contributing factor in all of them and that the Richland county record of traffic fatalities might have been greatly reduced during the past six and a half months if greater care had been exercised.

As contrasted to Richland county's toll of 13 deaths thus far in 1938, it is interesting to note that Louisville, Ky., a city of more than 300,000 population, reaches this date with only 13 traffic deaths in the city and has gone through the past sixty days without an automobile fatality.

Making due allowance for Mansfield's inadequate policing, and considering the habits of carelessness formed by many local motorists as a result of lax enforcement of traffic regulations, this city's record of fatalities for the first half of the year may be regarded as surprisingly good—only one person, a Cleveland woman, having been killed inside Mansfield's city limit by a collision of two automobiles.

With such a start made in Mansfield's safety campaign, with continued stressing of the need for careful, sober driving, and with an effort toward more consistent enforcement of traffic regulations, this city may yet be able to establish a creditable safety record.

The suggestion that three modern motorcycles be purchased for the police department, and manned by officers assigned mainly to traffic duty, is worthy of consideration in looking to better enforcement of Mansfield traffic regulations and discouragement of speeding on residence streets.

Prevent Winter Fires Now.

NOW is the time to get ready for winter comfort, while the heating plant is out of service. Many a December fire has been prevented in August.

Your furnace should be thoroughly examined by an expert, cleaned, and necessary repairs made. Flues, chimneys and fireplaces should be given similar attention. All this work should be done in a first-class manner—short-cuts don't pay.

Another excellent plan is to go on a still hunt through the house for debris. Litter in the basement—rickety furniture you stored away in the attic and forgot—greasy rags and waste in the garage—accumulations of junk in drawers and cupboards—get rid of it now. Such accumulations are fire's favorite breeding places.

Next inspect lamps, electric cords and other equipment which is used little this time of year. They will have to carry their heaviest loads during the winter months—and any defect may result in a disastrous fire. And again, call in an expert—it's cheapest in the long run. Amateur electrical repairs are often worse than no repairs at all.

When this work is finished, you'll have a more comfortable home as well as a safer home.

Charles Sawyer's Visit.

ONE of the difficulties encountered by voters is that of becoming sufficiently acquainted with candidates to be enabled to form any accurate estimate of their comparative qualifications.

This is especially true in district or state contests, in which it is physically impossible for a candidate to meet all voters.

The fact remains, however, that it is important for voters to know something about each candidate who aspires to any important public office.

Mansfield and Richland county voters have had many opportunities to see and hear Governor Davey, now a candidate for third term, but many have not had opportunity—until today—to see and hear Charles Sawyer, who is opposing Mr. Davey for nomination as the Democratic candidate for governor.

Former lieutenant governor and present member of the Democratic national committee, Mr. Sawyer has been active in the Democratic party for a number of years.

His visit to Mansfield today, with an address scheduled for Central park this evening, will give additional voters opportunity to make the acquaintance of a candidate in a contest which straw votes being taken over the state indicate will be close and interesting.

Aerial Detour.

DANGERS of flying will be immeasurably increased if Douglas Corrigan's experience in starting for California and landing in Ireland may be regarded as one of the ordinary hazards of the air.

While there is inclination in some quarters to doubt Corrigan's story that it was all a mistake, due to a defective compass which indicated that he was traveling west instead of east, it must also be kept in mind that he flew recently from California, where things sometimes appear to get quite badly twisted.

And, anyhow, what is more natural than that a flying Corrigan should indulge in a little detour so as to drop in on the home folks?

A Columbia professor says "anyone worried and not feeling well should get married," which may have no connection with the old saying about "Out of the frying pan . . ."

Al Smith is being talked of for the senate—and a brown derby with a toga to match would at least be unique.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

CIVIL LIBERTIES are an issue—and a paramount issue—as one friend of this column remarks, but economics also are an issue, an issue that eventually may destroy civil liberties. For if Liberalism is wrecked now on the rock of poor economics, then a reactionary tyrant appearing at first in the guise of a savior may gain an immense following lure it into the trap and close the door.

This reasons this friend. And others agree with him.

This man, an intense Liberal, far beyond Roosevelt, still is a keen analyst, a cautious investor. He agrees with Wall Street commentators more often than he disagrees with them—on economics. He disagrees with Wall Street entirely on social and political problems.

WHEAT

At the moment the greatest jugglery occurs in wheat. There is a "surplus" crop in the United States and in the world. The United States, in order to prevent a devastating price drop, has offered loans averaging 59 to 60 cents a bushel to farmers desiring to store their wheat for better prices. The scale is a complicated affair, ranging all the way from 50 to 82 cents, but that detail need not be gone into here.

Now, even though the government announced this great boost, wheat prices continued to drop a bit. And why? Any tremendous surplus hanging over any market will be deflationary. Furthermore, in spite of the stock market rise, world prices still are in a deflationary spiral—and probably will continue so until a point is reached at which consumption on a large scale will begin again.

In the meantime, sensing the situation, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace would cut next year's wheat acreage in the United States from 90 million to 55 million acres. But how is the United States to prevent other wheat-growing countries from increasing their acreages as they did last year and the year previously, when the U. S. cut?

When the cotton farmers cut, they found India, Egypt, Brazil, Russia increasing and selling for less money, thus taking their markets away.

That raises the often-raised question: Why not, therefore, subsidize wheat exports? That is, have the government pay the difference between the world price and the American (pegged price). Then, the assumption is, the wheat would be dumped on the world markets at less than non-subsidized wheat produced in other countries.

The result, our friend points out, probably would be disastrous. There would be a trade war, new retaliations against other exports, and world interchange of trade would be tied up worse than ever. That is the trouble now—each country is trying to live unto itself. And it cannot be done in an economic world as sensitive as this. (Nor is it probable it could succeed on any planet, among any peoples. The present folly will be looked back to in the future with an unbelief and a shudder.)

* * *

BUT—

Secretary Wallace, however, derided as he is by Wall street, has written and spoken extensively on the "way out." This Wall Street fails to heed, our friend asserts.

Remove protection (prohibitive and high tariffs—from manufactured goods, so that other nations can exchange their goods for crops—and we shall need no crop subsidies. Nor does he believe manufacturers will suffer, for the great agricultural world will have enough return through regular channels then to (1) buy manufactured goods in large quantities, and (2) the government will not have to give farm aid, thus taxes would fall and business would find it less cumbersome and less costly to operate.

That is well worth everybody's immediate thought. As it is, we are moving closer and closer to the economic rocks—and NOT because of New Deal liberalism, our friend declares.

Timely Editorial

Nuisance Taxes Lifted.

If you haven't noticed it in the news columns, here's information that since July 1 the federal special taxes were lifted from tooth paste, soap, furs, phonograph records, sporting goods, cameras, chewing gum, matches, etc. The assessment on a new fishing rod or tennis racket was 10 per cent; on the soap, tooth paste and such things as rouge and eye-brow pencils, 5 per cent; on matches, 2 per cent, and on a new fur coat, 3 per cent.

For any tax relief, in times when tax news is pretty much all about increases, the public has occasion to give thanks. However, Congress cut some of the "nuisance" taxes out of the new tax law because the treasury found the returns from them hardly paid the costs of their collection.—Detroit News.

WHY, THERE HE IS NOW!

Democrats Split Over 'Principles'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — The current political campaign thus far has been a decidedly more vicious one between Democrats and Democrats than between Democrats and Republicans.

When the nominating primaries are over and the contest simmers down to a fight for election day majorities doubtless the conflict will assume more the complexion of an inter-party struggle. All the same, plenty of erstwhile Democratic votes are pretty certain to be cast for Republican candidates and a good many formerly Republican votes probably will be cast for Democrats.

To be sure, the Democrats are worse split than the Republicans.

* * *

TRADITIONAL

Traditionally the Democrats have been at odds with one another and the Republicans have been very well unified.

I once asked the late Democratic Speaker "Joe" Byrns why this was.

"Well," he said, "we Democrats have principles but different groups of us have different sets of principles and we quarrel over them.

"The Republicans haven't any. All they want is to win. They don't care how they do it. Having won, they may quarrel, too, over a division of the plunder, but they can agree on anything to beat us initially."

* * *

IN 1932—

In 1932, however, the Republicans were worse split than the Democrats.

The Democrats also were split, as usual, between the Roosevelt ians and the Al Smithites. But the Republicans were split all to pieces, due to the "Hoover depression." Even the Al Smith Democrats preferred Roosevelt to Hoover, and whole shoals preferred anybody to the latter.

Between 1932 and 1936 nothing occurred to set the Democrats to pulling intra-party hair, times appeared to be reasonably good and the Republican presidential candidate decidedly lacked popular appeal. Consequently the Democrats stuck together and hung onto most of their normally Republican supporters.

* * *

SPLIT WIDE NOW

But since 1936 conflicting Democratic principles (referred to by "Joe" Byrns) have been getting in their work again.

Supreme court reorganization! Governmental reorganization! Anti-lynching! Wage-hour legislation! Continued deficits! The recession! Mutiplying patronage jealousies! Now, attempted purges of anti-New Dealers!

Anyone who can say that the Democratic party isn't split at present assuredly is a Democratic optimist.

Meanwhile Republicanism (what there is left of it) has remained fairly cohesive. There are, indeed, Republican rifts likewise. Such a G. O. P. stand-by as Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., for example, asserts that his party is hopelessly back-numbered. Nevertheless, no one has heard such jowering between Republicans as between Democrats.

* * *

NEW DEALERS STRONG

The predominant Democratic wing's strength is that it has scored such overwhelming victories since 1932 as to be supremely confident. There is such a thing as being over-confident, but the New Deal does not appear to be over-confident enough to be beaten. It may lose a few congressional seats, which will disconcert it a bit, but that is all, in all likelihood.

On the opposite hand, the Republicans are so smacked down that their morale is shattered.

In short, the Democrats can split, and their major wing still will outclass united Republicanism plus such seceding Democrats as it may scoop in. Such, at least, are the indications.

* * *

TWO FORCES

The fact is, we no longer have a Democratic and a Republican party, in the old sense.

We have New Dealers, and, RELATIVELY, conservatives.

Our conservatives are not as conservative as conservatives used to be—an item to be taken into consideration.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

Indian Giver.

I KNEW a generous man whose friends were few.

Whenever that man became aware of need around him, his impulse was to give. . . . If he heard of a talented boy barred by poverty from college, he saw to it that boy went. . . . If you admired one of his possessions, he was as likely as not to give it to you . . . If you were down in the dumps and needed encouragement, he would go to infinite pains to strengthen you and shake you out of your doldrums and give you enthusiasm once again for living. . . . He gave largely of himself and the wealth that was in him never seemed diminished by his giving.

And yet, though many praised him, few were his friends.

The cause? He had one fatal weakness. He could not give in secret!

In return for his giving, he demanded gratitude from the receiver, applause from all who knew of his generosity.

The source from which his giving sprang was pure and sweet and undefiled by the world. . . . He gave because he could not bear to see talent unused or human beings going without the good that he himself enjoyed. He was kind and simple and democratic and essentially good.

But, having given, he wanted the world to know his goodness. He dramatized himself as a source of power to lesser beings. And if you did not know how wonderful he was, he insisted on telling you. . . . You heard from some other source of some kindness he had conferred and if you spoke of it to him he was all modesty and self-depreciation. But if you did not mention it, he seemed driven by some inner demon to tell you of it to praise himself in some indirect fashion or to complain of the ingratitude he had known.

And so he was not loved!

And in time he began to realize that this was so . . . In his lifetime he had given 10 times, a hundred times, as much of himself and his goods as other men have done—and had received much less than they of common affection.

It annoyed him, grieved him, disconcerted him, bewildered him, and at times I heard him brood upon the meanness of mankind. . . . But never once, as far as I know, did he ever seem to understand that the fault alone was his. . . . He died a lonely man, and words of high praise were spoken at his grave. But, the pity of it: few tears were shed.

Listen, World!

Be Dissatisfied---If You Want To Accomplish Anything.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

PROFESSOR ROBERT M. HUTCHINSON, president of the University of Chicago, said a large thing recently—

"THOUGHTFUL DISSATISFACTION HAS PRODUCED MOST OF THE THINGS WHICH ARE INDISPENSABLE TO CIVILIZED LIFE."

Thoughtful dissatisfaction is a desirable condition—? That's a new notion, isn't it? And one that's directly opposed to our American code. Rarely does one read an endorsement of any form of discontent. To the contrary, happiness has become a fetish with most moderns . . . the certain test of a successful life. Never did mortals pursue pleasure and contentment with more zest. . . .

"IF YOU AREN'T HAVING FUN, THERE'S SOMETHING WRONG. IF YOU DON'T LIKE WHAT YOU'RE DOING, THAT'S A PROOF THAT YOU SHOULD DO SOMETHING ELSE!" . . . there's our 20th Century Code. Than which nothing could be more nonsensical.

For the great things in life have not been accomplished by satisfied people . . . nor by happy people. They have been accomplished by people who were deeply stirred by misery, their own and others' . . . by angry, indignant people who were in violent revolt against the Status Quo . . . by desperate people who didn't give-a-hang and so gambled all they had on one last shot.

Socrates wasn't happy when he drank the hemlock, in his last, proud gesture in defense of free thought, free speech. He had been steeped in personal misery for years. Physically he was so grotesque that strangers hooted when he passed. His domestic life was a hell, under Xantippe's shrewish tongue. His sons were ill-mannered, fatuous fools. Daily he was publicly shamed by some member of his family. All his unwavering devotion to the truth, which forced him to flout the ignorance and hypocrisy of his day, doomed him to certain and agonizing death.

Yet, despite his personal misery and humiliation, Socrates founded the first Youth Movement in history. Ugly, persecuted, despised, he yet became the teacher of the whole human race. BY QUESTIONING, HE TAUGHT THE YOUNG MEN OF HIS DAY TO THINK. AND SO CHANGED ALL THE COURSE OF HUMAN LIFE.

Lincoln wasn't happy when he freed the slaves—and saved his nation from disintegration. He, too, bore the burden of a hideous home life . . . as well as the bitterness of public castigation. Men called him "clown" and "lout" . . . "Judas," "traitor" and "fool." His heart was scarred with pain. And yet he "ran the race and kept the faith"—until the bloody end.

Nor was Florence Nightingale happy, when she broke all bond with her sex and times—and brought God's healing mercy to a battlefield. Nor was Father Damien happy when he placed his life on the altar as a sacrifice and cast his lot with lepers. Nor were those heroes "happy" who dared defy the tragic superstition that small pox and yellow fever were "God's will," and risked their lives that other men might live.

Nor was Christ happy in that awful moment on the cross when even God, His Father, seemed to have forsaken Him—

Go back as far as you can trace the human trail, and you will find that those who did the greatest things for human progress, were never happy, never satisfied. Not only did they bear some natural handicap—BUT THEY DELIBERATELY SOUGHT DISSATISFACTION WITH LIFE AS IT WAS.

They would not let their hearts remain content in face of human need!

They would not let themselves be comfortable and gay, as long as others sobbed and staggered on the way of life!

THEY CHOSE UNHAPPINESS . . . AS ONE WOULD CHOOSE A MAN'S RESPONSIBILITY AGAINST A CHILDISH TOY.

Fun was for weaklings. Contentment was for cows. But full-grown Men chose hard and rocky trails.

"THOUGHTFUL DISSATISFACTION HAS PRODUCED MOST OF THE THINGS WHICH ARE INDISPENSABLE TO CIVILIZED LIFE."

Think of the people you know today who are Making Good. Are they the Jitter Bugs—the Dipsy Doodles? Or are they the ones WHO REFUSE TO HAVE FUN . . . WHO FORCE THEMSELVES TO BE THOUGHTFULLY DISSATISFIED? The young men and women who toil in laboratories or isolate themselves in jungles or heave themselves into the awful infinity of the sky—THAT HUMANITY MAY REACH A HIGHER, WIDER TRAIL?

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

HARMONIOUS LIVES ARE STRONG: Then he said unto them, Go your way, eat the fat, and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared: for this day is holy unto the Lord: neither be ye sorry; for the joy of the Lord is your strength.—Nehemiah 8:10.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

ABOARD the Bostonian—This is one of those pleasantly swift, air conditioned specials that plies between Grand Central terminal in Manhattan and the City of Boston—hence its name.

But we are not going all the way to Boston this time. Unless the man who sold us our tickets is playing a dirty trick on us we will get off at Saybrook, Conn., and drive over to Old Lyme, which is only a couple of handsprings down a pretty road. And then we will become the house guest of Harrison and Frances Wood, friends of long standing, who are spending the summer there.

It is a curious ride for one unfamiliar with the New England countryside. After you pass Greenwich, which is said to be one of the wealthiest communities in the eastern section of the United States, you cling pretty consistently to the Connecticut shoreline and the whole way is a picturesque network of bays and coves which are dotted with yawls and sloops and smaller craft of every description.

* * *

THERE are lovely homes with green lawns running to the water's edge, and miles of stone fences built by hand with a patience that would have taxed Job himself. You see long nets drying on racks in the sun and people fishing in small boats or from shore for crabs, eels, and blues.

Pretty soon we are at Stamford, and then South Norwalk, and in a little while Bridgeport, and after that New Haven. And after awhile we come to Saybrook, seat of the ancient Pequoit Indian wars. Yale university was founded there before they moved it to New Haven. The former Yale site is now occupied by a cemetery. Lady Fenwick, first white woman ever to live in Connecticut, lived in Saybrook in a quaint white house with shutters. She died there too and is buried just a few steps away from the waters of North Cove.

Along North Cove is a group of beautiful homes, and one of them belongs to Dr. Hepburn, father of Katharine Hepburn, the actress. She is there now and it is said that Howard Hughes was a guest in Dr. Hepburn's home just before his record-breaking flight around the world.

WE LEFT Grand Central at 11 a. m., EST, which is breakfast time if you aren't an early breakfaster. And breakfast on this trip serves a double purpose—it keeps you from noticing the rather awful (to look upon) excavations underway around 125th street station, and permits you to ride into the New England gateway on the vast satisfaction of a full stomach. A well-fed man is usually a happy one, and that is the frame of mind one should be in when you visit this country. For years now I've been listening to New Englanders boast and brag of their manner of living, their stately elms, their weather and fishing.

And I'm going to see for myself. Miss Hall, the stewardess, tells me we are only a couple of miles from Saybrook, and so in a few minutes I'll be in the car and heading for Old Lyme, with its tree-shaded streets and old, old houses, and inviting gardens, and lobster dinners.
